

GERMANY OFFERS TO JOIN EASTERN PACT IN MESSAGE TO CONFERENCE AT STRESA

SENATE APPROVES BILL TO INCREASE FUNDS OF HOLC

Bond Issuing Authority of Corporation Extended by $1,750,000,000 Under Measure; House Conference Slated.

BROWN-RAMSPACK PROPOSAL TABLED

Amendment, However, Certain To Remain in Legislation To Be Worked Out in Conference.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(P)—A bill designed to reopen the doors of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation by dropping $1,750,000,000 more into its coffers was passed by the senate today without even the formality of a record vote.

In expanding the bond issuing authority of the corporation, the senate stood fast on one controversial point by refusing to change the existing regional office setup of the HOLC. The bill now goes to conference with the house for a settlement of differences.

The senate's action disposed of another of the measures on the administration program and permitted an adjournment until Monday. Democratic leaders were not prepared to say what legislation would be considered next, but the motor carrier regulation, AAA amendment, and Bankhead farm tenant aid bills are in position.

Designed particularly to aid the thousands of home owners wishing to refinance their mortgage debts, the HOLC bill was amended on the floor to take care not only of those whose loans applications were pending at the time the corporation ran out of money but of any new applications filed within 60 days after enactment of the bill.

An amendment by Senator Bankhead, democrat, Alabama, which would have transferred all loan-making and servicing work from regional to state offices within 60 days, leaving the 11 regional offices the sole office of supervising the making of loans, was rejected 49 to 28.

The effect of this amendment would have virtually eliminated the regional offices—an act which several southern senators favored. But Senator Bulkley, democrat, Ohio, in charge of the bill, and Senator Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, successfully opposed the change with contentions that it would centralize control again in Washington and result in inefficiency and confusion.

The bill went to conference minus the house provision requiring every employee of a regional office be a resident of the region in which the office is located.

The measure not only raises the bond-issuing authority of the HOLC from $2,000,000,000 to $4,750,000,000 but changes the existing HOLC and

Sharp Business Boom Held Imminent by Dun

Swiftest Rise in 25 Years Will Be Fortified Adequately Against Recessions, Leading Analysts Forecast.

NEW YORK, April 12.—(P)—The sharpest business rise in 25 years was forecast for the immediate future in the weekly business review by Dun & Bradstreet today.

"More convincing proof has come forward that the passing of March left behind the lows for the year," the review stated.

"During the week there was a complete transformation of sentiment, as the hopes for a rather far-removed improvement were replaced by a realization that the immediate future is to bring the sharpest rise that has been witnessed in business in the past quarter of a century."

The review added that the rise "will be fortified adequately to prevent the interrupting recessions which followed the spurts of the last two years."

It continued: "Potential benefits of the five billion dollars appropriated by the government have provided stimulus needed to dispel the impatience which had appeared in some branches because of the let-down in business toward the close of the first quarter."

"All of the reports received were more decisive than at any time this year in the confident attitude taken regarding a more even tempo of progress from now on."

"Encouragement also was provided by the fact that, in spite of rain, cold snowfall and recurrent dust-storms, consumer demand was sufficiently strong to carry retail distribution to a larger total than for the week preceding."

NEARLY $11,000,000 ADDED TO WINTER WHEAT VALUE
CHICAGO, April 12.—(P)—Dollar wheat came home like the prodigal son today and the Board of Trade welcomed it with a sudden flare of bullish enthusiasm that added nearly $11,000,000 to the value of the winter wheat still in the ground.

Traders wandered out of the wheat pit to read a Dun & Bradstreet prophecy that the sharpest business advance in 25 years was on the horizon.

They came back to the pit for a spectacular flurry of buying that lifted the price of the wheat to a level for the first time since early January, added 2 3/8 to 2 1/2 cents a bushel to yesterday's closing prices and on the basis of Wednesday's government estimate of a 435,000,000-bushel harvest of winter wheat, enhanced that crop's value on the futures market by $10,875,000.

Since last Saturday, wheat had advanced 6 to 8 3/4 cents a bushel, the September delivery showing the best

GRADE CROSSINGS TO BE ELIMINATED WITH JOB FUNDS

Appalled by Rail Tragedies, President To Set Aside Up to $200,000,000 for Prompt Construction

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(P)—With the tragic death toll of a close-by grade-crossing accident before him, President Roosevelt today laid down the principles to govern the spending of between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000 of work-relief funds for making safe the places where highways and railroads meet.

The president cited the accident last night at Rockville, Md., in which 14 pupils were killed when a school bus was smashed by a train as an illustration of the need for grade-crossing elimination.

Representative Buchanan, democrat, Texas, disclosed that the compromise wage clause in the big work-relief bill—requiring payment of the prevailing wage on permanent public building projects—would not trouble the administration. It would cause no both, he said, because it had been decided that no such projects would be undertaken under the $4,000,000,000 fund.

Instead, said Buchanan, chairman of the house appropriations committee, an appropriation of about $45,000,000 for public buildings would be provided in the second deficiency bill and prevailing wages would be paid as usual under the Bacon-Davis act.

Basic Principles.
At his press conference President Roosevelt outlined four basic principles to govern the spending of money for grade crossings. They were that:

The states or localities shall provide the land for doing away with the crossings.

The crossings eliminated shall be on main line railroads.

The federal government will pay the full cost of the work.

To these, he added a previous specification that he had laid down for all work relief—that all of the work that can be done shall be completed before July 1, 1936.

Because of this, he said, there would be no time to iron out disputes that might arise over securing the land for elimination work.

The president added that there was a growing tendency to do away with branch line railroads because of bus and other competition, and for this reason no work of that character would be done except for main line roads.

The development of streamline trains, which were changing train speed from 45 and 50 miles an hour to 70 or 80 miles an hour emphasized, he said, the need for crossing elimination work.

Mr. Roosevelt said the bureau of public roads would handle grade-crossing elimination work and that perhaps a special division of this bureau would be set up. In others which has compiled a long list of projects on main highways with estimates of the cost of such projects.

The president said that in some states, like New York, which has a grade-crossing elimination agency, the states themselves would do the work with the federal government providing the money. In others which are not so equipped, he said the federal government would do it for them.

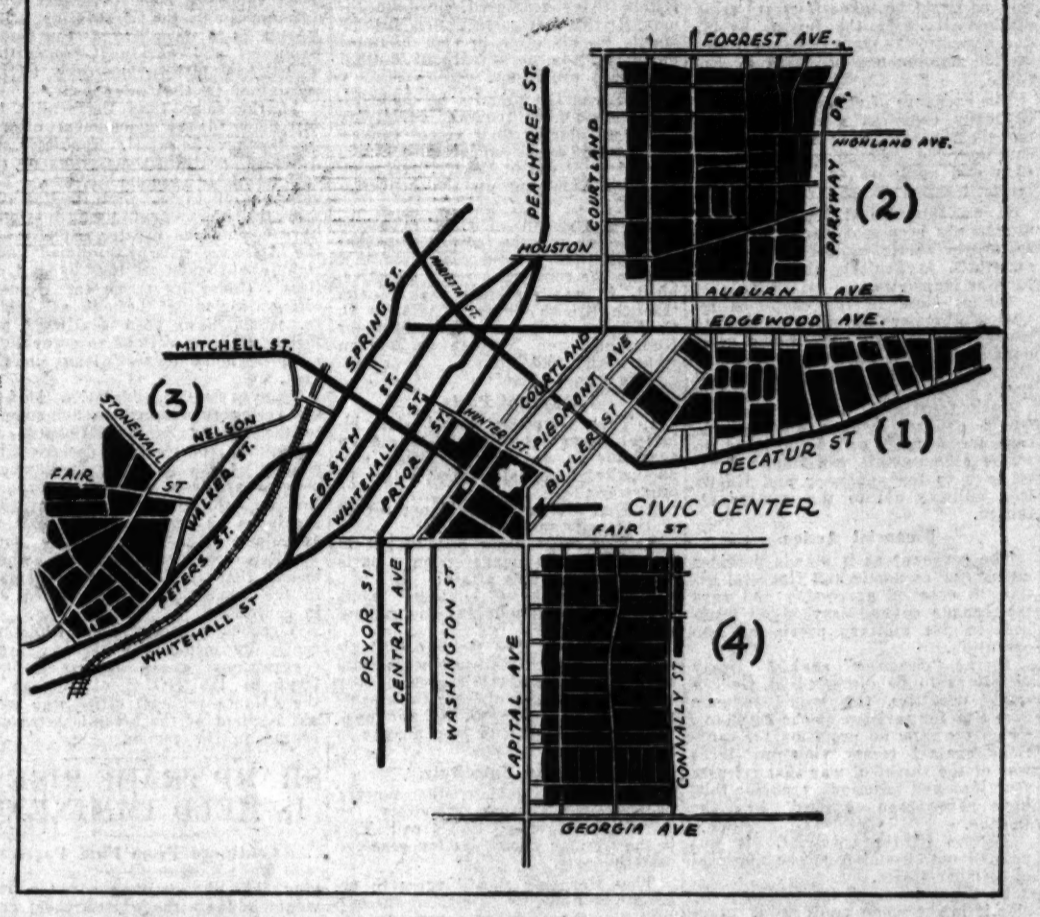

Other Issues.
Mr. Roosevelt indicated also that progress had been made toward working out the machinery for handling other phases of the work to be done with the $4,000,000,000 work appropriation.

Graf Zeppelin Breaks From Mooring Post
PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, April 12.—(P)—The Graf Zeppelin, famous transatlantic German air liner, went aloft here this morning as she was being moored, demolished a laborer's hut, and cracked a rudder and a propeller before she was securely moored.

The Graf had come here from Rio de Janeiro after a flight from Germany and was being made fast to her landing field mast at the time of the accident, approximately 6:34 a. m. The mooring cable parted and the big ship drifted across a football field until it hit the hut.

City Seeks $40,000,000 From U. S. For Extensive Improvement Work

Location of the proposed four new federal low-cost housing and slum-clearance projects, for which Mayor Pro Tem, Ed A. Gilliam is seeking $17,500,000 from the $4,880,000,000 federal public projects fund, is shown above. In addition to the housing projects, the fund would provide for 36 new playgrounds and parks in congested areas. Project No. 1, in the above drawing, contains .137 square miles of territory; project No. 2, .234 square miles; project No. 3, .216, and project No. 4, .116. A total of .703 square miles on the worst congested territory in the city is involved in the studies. Clearing of the civic center also is contemplated in the projected undertaking, and especially the block bounded by Mitchell, Hunter and Washington streets and Central avenue. The black area, however, is extended for the entire project and contemplates that the cleared civic center area shall extend out Central avenue to Fair street and eastward along Fair to Capitol avenue.

Various city departments yesterday were ready to ask for about $40,000,000 in federal funds for various improvements in Atlanta, and officials were busy completing their plans for formal presentation.

The money, if obtained, will come from the $4,880,000,000 federal public works appropriation just made by congress.

The $17,200,000 rehousing program, which Mayor Pro Tem Ed A. Gilliam is now in Washington to obtain, heads the list of the matters under consideration, but running a close second is a request for $8,800,000 for sewer improvements; $5,000,000 for remodeling, improving and construction of schools; approximately $1,918,140 for a centrally located municipal auditorium, and about $2,000,000 for elimination of grade crossings and construction and repairs to city viaducts.

In addition, officials at Grady hospital, Battle Hill sanitarium and the city stockade yesterday were laying plans to ask a total of about $2,000,000 for improvements.

School and sewer improvements and the auditorium request formerly were

HITLER REVERSES REICH POSITION IN SURPRISE MOVE

News Cheers Envoys of Three Powers as Common Action Is Agreed Upon for League of Nations Session.

PARLEY SLATED TO ADJOURN TODAY

Berlin Chancellor Ready To Sign Agreement Not To Aid an Aggressor in Any Manner.

By the Associated Press.

Germany tossed an olive branch into the council hall at Stresa Friday with her offer to join an eastern pact even though other participants commit themselves to military assistance provisions she will not sign.

Earlier Britain, France and Italy had agreed common action at the extraordinary session of the League of Nations council meeting April 15 to consider France's appeal against Germany's rearmament in violation of the Versailles treaty.

With the conference scheduled to adjourn today, it was expected Hitler's action, coming suddenly after he had steadfastly refused to sign the pact France originally proposed, would go far toward softening the French policy at Geneva.

WILLING TO CO-OPERATE.
GERMANY TELLS POWERS (Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)
STRESA, April 12.—(P)—Germany told Britain, France and Italy today she is willing to take part in efforts to forestall war.

Specifically, she let it be known she would enter an eastern non-aggression pact—something she has heretofore rejected—even though other participants "stipulate among themselves accords of reciprocal assistance."

That was the glad news Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, took to Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin and Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, of France, and Premier Benito Mussolini and Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Fulvio Suvich, of Italy, gathered on Isola Bella.

Sir John had his information from Sir Eric Phipps, the British ambassador in Berlin, whom Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath today informed of the reich's abrupt about-face.

The German offer means she will join an eastern agreement, something anxiously desired by France and her big friend, Russia, though she will not contract military obligations under it. If other parties desire to do so, that will be no bar to Germany's adherence.

Agreement Reached.
Laval revealed that the three conferees had reached complete agreement as to the program, to be followed at Geneva when the League of Nations council meets Monday to consider France's appeal against Germany's rearmament in violation of the Versailles treaty.

France, presumably in response to British urging, abandoned all thought of seeking to have the council condemn Germany for her action.

In return, it was authoritatively stated, Britain gave her blessing to regional mutual assistance pacts within the framework of the League such as France desires as her "second line of defense against war."

A high British spokesman, confirming Laval's disclosure, said that the powers were agreed as to their program at Geneva, said it covered the lines to be followed on two questions:

1. Germany's armaments program.

WALLACE TO TALK IN ATLANTA TODAY

Secretary of Agriculture Will Speak Twice at Wesley Church.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace will arrive in Atlanta this afternoon for two addresses here, one at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon and the other at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Both addresses will be at the Wesley Memorial church.

The speech this afternoon will be mainly for farmers, the subject of the secretary's talk being "Cotton." He will be accompanied here by Cully A. Cobb, former Atlantaan, who is head of the cotton section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Chancellor Philip Welner, of the University System, will present Secretary Wallace at this afternoon's meeting.

At the meeting tonight, Secretary Wallace will talk on "Jefferson Today," the speech being the city's observance of the birthday anniversary of Thomas Jefferson. This meeting is being sponsored by the Jeffersonian Union, headed by Attorney W. A.

SCHOOL BUS CRASH PROBE LAUNCHED

Grief-Stricken Parents Receive Bodies of 14 Victims, Driver Held.

WILLIAMSPORT, Md., April 12.—(P)—Silent, grief-stricken Williamsport parents today received the broken bodies of 14 children who died in the shambles of a bus on a Baltimore and Ohio railroad grade crossing at Rockville, Md.

Mass funeral services have been suggested by school authorities. It appeared unlikely, however, that this course would be followed for more than six or seven of the victims as some parents expressed a desire for individual services.

At Rockville, a five-sided investigation was started in an attempt to sift out circumstances of last night's crash—Maryland's most tragic in years.

Percy Line, driver of the shiny, new bus which was carrying the children home from a chemistry show at the University of Maryland, was held on a charge of manslaughter.

Only two of the 15 injured persons were still in hospitals. The others had come back home.

The sweeping five-cornered investigation was launched by the state Public Service Commission, the state police department, Montgomery county and Rockville officials, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

A formal coroner's inquest was scheduled for Tuesday at Rockville. Line and Miss Louise Funk, the teacher who carried her chemistry class on the trip, said they heard no warning signals, saw no warning lights at the crossing. Their first knowledge of the train came, they said, when its headlight pierced the foggy blackness of last night and shone directly into the windows of the bus.

There was no watchman on duty at the crossing. His time of duty had expired an hour and a half before the crash.

C. W. Galloway, vice president of the railroad, issued a formal statement in Baltimore in which he said: "The crossing . . . is protected by standard signals and by warning bells."

GEORGIA TEACHERS TO FIGHT REPEAL

R. L. Ramsey's Resolution Is Adopted at Macon Convention.

By PERRY MULLEN, Associated Press Staff Writer.

MACON, Ga., April 12.—(P)—A resolution pledging the Georgia Education Association to fight repeal of the state prohibition law was adopted by an overwhelming vote at the annual convention here tonight.

Heated discussion followed introduction of the resolution by R. L. Ramsey, principal of the Fulton County High school and a member of the state legislature. Numerous speakers sought recognition from the chair and vigorous pleas against introduction of the subject were made.

The debate grew so warm that Ramsey asked permission to withdraw the resolution but he was shouted down. A motion to table the resolution was lost overwhelmingly.

When the vote on the question was called the resolution carried with a resounding echo of ayes through the city auditorium.

The resolution said bills passed by the legislature providing for a referendum on liquor would place the state's schools in an "awkward" position. "Schools are required by state law to teach temperance. These liquor bills bring in the matter of supply and demand into the classroom."

Burglar Calls Police To Vicious Dog, Jailed

CHICAGO, April 12.—(P)—The watchdog that chased Edward Murray out of the basement at 1426 West Congress street just as he was slipping the light fixtures was only doing his duty, but Mr. Murray was perfectly furious.

He went straight from 1426 West Congress street to the nearest police station and made a complaint. A dog with a vicious temper like that, he said, ought to be suppressed, or something.

The police promised to take steps, and they did. At 1426 West Congress they learned what Murray had been doing in the basement.

Fortunately Murray had left his address at the station for a report on the vicious dog situation. Murray was put away for 10 days. He is sorry he spoke about the dog.

TALMADGE STANDS BY PLANNING BODY

Governor Says Board Will Function, Despite Harry Hopkins' Plans.

Governor Talmadge, in a statement issued yesterday, asserted he would stand pat on the state advisory board for public works he had named earlier in the week, despite reports from Washington that Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins planned to set up a board of his own to determine what projects should be approved in the state.

The governor said that it was at the request of Washington authorities that he had named his board and added that the men he had chosen represented all phases of life in the state.

The chief executive also pointed out that because the members he named were all state officials the board could operate without cost to either the state or the federal government, whereas the plan of Hopkins would call for a board which would prove an expense to the government.

Talmadge said that in his statement, the governor said: "I have had no official communication in regard to the matter of a board of public works."

ROAD CONTRACTS TOTAL $525,000

Awards Include $53,826 for Atlanta-Marietta Highway Repaving Job.

Contracts for $525,000 worth of paving, grading and bridge work, including one for $53,826 for the repaving of the Atlanta-Marietta highway, were awarded yesterday by the State Highway Board. Work on all of the projects will be started next week, Chairman W. E. Wilburn, of the highway board, announced.

The largest single contract went to the Whitley Construction Company, of LaGrange, which submitted a low bid of $150,351.11 for the paving of 10 miles in Jasper and Morgan counties on the Monticello-Marietta highway. The Whitley company offer was $17,000 less than the second lowest proposal.

The second largest contract went to the Cornell-Young Company, of Macon, for the paving of 0.886 miles in the city of Cartersville. The bid was $80,111.00. This project calls for extensive drainage and sewer work in addition to the paving.

Other projects and the companies to which the contracts were awarded follow:

Coffee County—5.277 miles of pavement and one culvert-type bridge on the Douglas-Pearson road: $50,447, by the Coffee Construction Company, of Eastman, Ga.

Grady County—3.314 miles of grading on the Cairo-Pelham road: $17,905.33, by the Gibson-Robertson Company, of Dalton, Ga.

Jones County—2.270 miles of grading on the Gray-Monticello road: $37,463.47, by the C. M. Lyle Construction Company, of Gainesville, Ga.

Emory Students Take Part In Anti-War Demonstration

Students at Emory University yesterday morning joined with other students of the nation in a demonstration of condemnation of war. The Atlanta demonstration was peaceful and orderly, but in other sections of the country they were marked by the hurling of stench bombs, heckling and minor disorders.

Inspired by a savage attack on war by Dr. LaVens Thomas, professor of religious education in the Emory Theology school, 250 Emory students signed a petition asking President Roosevelt to stop the naval maneuvers in the Pacific planned for May and June. The petition, offered by Fred Wilson, president of the Emory Y. M. C. A., submits "that the sending of a delegation of good-will to Japan would be more conducive to the preservation of peace than any such show of force."

Morehouse Students "Strike."
At Morehouse College here the students "struck" at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and assembled for 30 minutes in front of Sale hall where they listened to peace talks by Drew Days, Butler A. Jones, Leroy Haynes and W. W. Jackson. Following the demonstration, 85 students signed a petition similar to that circulated at Emory University.

Other Atlanta colleges and universities did not join in the demonstration.

Dr. Thomas in his talk to the Emory students in the chapel, said: "I action of good-will to Japan would be in reputation of the Treaty of Versailles.

2. Desirable action in similar future cases.

The British official emphasized that only the League council can decide finally on such matters, but as far as the three powers are concerned they are agreed on their attitude.

In this connection the spokesman recalled Simon's recent statement before the house of commons that England would make no new commitments at Stresa.

"All that we can do," the official commented, "is to adopt the line of agreement to be followed somewhere else."

In announcing Germany's readiness to enter an eastern pact, Simon, it was revealed, told the conference the reich believed there should be two separate documents.

Hitler's offer, informed quarters expected, would often the French protest to Geneva.

Nevertheless, French circles said, France is going ahead with conclusion of her mutual assistance pact with soviet Russia which is expected to serve as the model of other similar bilateral pacts. A vast European "security system" would be formed thereby, it was said.

A French official denied reports from Paris that the Little Entente would be included in the Franco-Russian alliance which, he insisted, would be bilateral. Such pacts, however, might be negotiated between the countries of the Little Entente and Russia as well as among other countries.

The French memorandum to the League charging Germany with repudiation of the Versailles treaty and seeking to justify France's appeal under the "menace to international peace" clause of the League covenant was understood to have been sent to Geneva this afternoon.

British officials said they regarded Hitler's move on the eastern pact as a distinct concession.

Frankly jubilant at the long step forward toward settlement of continental problems embodied in Germany's offer to co-operate, the delegates indicated another conference of the big powers probably would be called to work out details of the eastern pact.

Austrian Situation.

Today's two sessions also discussed the Austrian situation, an official communiqué revealed, and gave some attention to the western European air alliance proposed in the Anglo-French communiqué of February 8.

The conference will reconvene at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Where differences of opinion threaten, the conference is expected to quickly today as the negotiations, preliminary exploration work done, got down to business.

Hard at it from 9:30 a. m. until 1 p. m., they lunched separately and returned to work. Revelation of what they had accomplished came after the afternoon session.

Premiers Entertained.

Tonight the fascist leader entertained the visiting premiers, with their assistants, at dinner in the Hotel Borromeo.

A "democratic" affair it was, for Mussolini tore up an elaborate menu the chef had devised for his distinguished guests.

A French spokesman, discussing the tri-power agreement on the course to be followed at Geneva, said it covered "measures" to be applied against any power violating treaties in the future.

Great Britain and Italy will support France's protest against such treaty repudiation, he said, adding that any motion eventually to be adopted would be left to the League council.

A British spokesman, in summarizing the morning session, said it was

Marion Talley, Opera Star,
Weds Musician in New York

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP)—Marion Talley, former Metropolitan opera star, was secretly married here March 28 to Adolph Eckstrom, a New York musician, it was disclosed today with the filing of the marriage license return at the county clerk's office.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. H. Gridley, pastor of the New City Methodist Episcopal church. Witnesses were listed as Clotier Peterson, of New York city, and George Link Jr., of New City.

Miss Talley gave her age in the license application as 28 and her residence as New City. Eckstrom said he was 37 and gave a New York city address.

The application stated it was the first marriage for both parties. It being noted that a previous marriage of Miss Talley had been annulled.

Miss Talley, a native of Kansas, made her debut with the Metropolitan opera February 17, 1926, and three years later announced she would retire and become a farmer.

She was married in June, 1932, to Michael Rauchenstein, a German pianist, at White Plains, N. Y., but the marriage was annulled in California six months later.

Friends in New York said the couple had left immediately after the ceremony in New City for an automobile tour to the Pacific coast via southern states.

Eckstrom is a prominent voice teacher in New York city with whom Miss Talley studied.

It comes to questions of foreign policy.

Asked if the delegation had any foreknowledge of the press reports, the spokesman answered: "It came from newspaper correspondents at Stresa."

SIMON IS REASSURED

BY HITLER ON PACT

BERLIN, April 12.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, today reassured Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, that he stands by his offer to sign bilateral non-aggression pacts without mutual assistance provisions.

That was the promise he made Simon, now at the tripover conference at Stresa, during their recent conversations here and that promises Simon carried to Stresa in the German memorandum summing up the conversations.

While German officials expressed surprise at reports from Stresa that the reich had offered something new to help the conference reach an agreement, it was disclosed that Simon, through British channels, had asked C. Newton, asked Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath to confirm what Hitler told him.

This was in brief:

Bilateral Pacts.

1. That Germany would sign bilateral pacts agreeing not to aid an aggressor in any way, whether economically, financially, militarily or otherwise.

2. That Germany would not accept mutual assistance provisions: a. That what other powers put in their bilateral nonaggression pacts was not Germany's affair; b. That all these bilateral pacts could be assimilated into one general pact.

The effect of this, German officials said, would be that other powers could have their mutual assistance in force but that none of Germany's pacts would obligate her to use her men, airplanes and guns to help anyone in trouble.

German Substitute.

It would also obviate other powers passing over German territory en route to answer an SOS call. This is the German substitute for proposed eastern pacts.

That Germany should agree to negotiate bilateral pacts without the mutual assistance clause even though other powers included it among themselves was described as quite "logical" for it was stated, "In the making of bilateral pacts outside countries cannot dictate what those treaties shall contain."

There were clear signs of perturbation among the British delegates at what was termed the "London political bomb"—the publication in London newspapers of what purported to be an authentic summary of the British program here.

Miss Talley, a native of Kansas, made her debut with the Metropolitan opera February 17, 1926, and three years later announced she would retire and become a farmer.

She was married in June, 1932, to Michael Rauchenstein, a German pianist, at White Plains, N. Y., but the marriage was annulled in California six months later.

Friends in New York said the couple had left immediately after the ceremony in New City for an automobile tour to the Pacific coast via southern states.

SIMON IS REASSURED

BY HITLER ON PACT

BERLIN, April 12.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, today reassured Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, that he stands by his offer to sign bilateral non-aggression pacts without mutual assistance provisions.

That was the promise he made Simon, now at the tripover conference at Stresa, during their recent conversations here and that promises Simon carried to Stresa in the German memorandum summing up the conversations.

While German officials expressed surprise at reports from Stresa that the reich had offered something new to help the conference reach an agreement, it was disclosed that Simon, through British channels, had asked C. Newton, asked Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath to confirm what Hitler told him.

This was in brief:

Bilateral Pacts.

1. That Germany would sign bilateral pacts agreeing not to aid an aggressor in any way, whether economically, financially, militarily or otherwise.

2. That Germany would not accept mutual assistance provisions: a. That what other powers put in their bilateral nonaggression pacts was not Germany's affair; b. That all these bilateral pacts could be assimilated into one general pact.

The effect of this, German officials said, would be that other powers could have their mutual assistance in force but that none of Germany's pacts would obligate her to use her men, airplanes and guns to help anyone in trouble.

German Substitute.

It would also obviate other powers passing over German territory en route to answer an SOS call. This is the German substitute for proposed eastern pacts.

That Germany should agree to negotiate bilateral pacts without the mutual assistance clause even though other powers included it among themselves was described as quite "logical" for it was stated, "In the making of bilateral pacts outside countries cannot dictate what those treaties shall contain."

BROWN-RAMPSPECK PROPOSAL

NOT ACTED ON BY SENATE

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The senate today in giving its final approval to the HOLC extension bill Ramspeck amendment, previously passed by the lower house, which would deny continued employment to persons in the agency who at the time of their appointment were not residents of the state or region served by branch offices to which they are assigned.

Senator Bennett Clark, of Missouri, had drafted the amendment on the subject but decided not to press it after making a survey of his colleagues.

Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Atlanta, joint sponsor of the amendment in the lower house along with Representative Paul Brown, of the tenth Georgia district, announced afterwards that he would seek to have the provision retained when conferees meet to adjust final differences in the legislation. Mr. Brown is a member of the house banking and currency committee, which has jurisdiction over HOLC legislation in the lower body.

At the same time the senate today defeated the amendment offered by Senator John H. Bankhead, of Alabama, curtailing activities of the various HOLC regional offices. The amendment would require that any regional office be established only if the Alabama senator proposed outright abolishment of the regional office. Under its terms the regional offices, including the one at Atlanta, would have been continued but restricted in operations to cover servicing of home owners' loans in the area.

Prior to final consideration the senate yesterday adopted an amendment to the act by Senator Richard B. Russell, of Georgia, to require that persons eligible for continued employment must be affiliated with any corporation or association engaged in making loans to the public.

Garb in the conventional corridors of the student civil engineers, with large placards bearing their names rolled to their backs, the 16 initiates yesterday afternoon trooped from Tech Flats through Atlanta's business district. Each carried a heavy block of concrete which they deposited on Mitchell street in front of the city hall and began breaking into bits with sledge hammers.

The life of a college student being initiated into a collegiate order is a hard one. Sixteen Georgia Tech students who yesterday were doing the bidding of the initiators of the American Society of Civil Engineers, can attest to that.

Up rolled the red patrol wagon and into it went the 16 initiates. At the police station they were booked on "suspicion," and were lodged in the specially designed jail quarters on the fifth floor of the new city jail.

"This is just junky-dory and we hope they keep us here until midnight when they'll let us out," said one of the initiates, explaining that initiation dangers would have subsided by that time.

Soon a bridge tournament was underway and from the shower baths came enthusiastic approval of the new jail's accommodations.

The students' hopes that they would be detained until after midnight were shattered when Patrolman Geeslin gave them copies of charges which commanded them to appear in recorder's court at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon and released them.

In addition to the four alum clearance projects included in Torras' $17,500,000 improvement estimate, $50,000 for improvements at the city crematorium is included, as well as establishment of 36 new city parks.

The parks would add another 150 acres to the city park system, according to estimates, and would be located mostly in congested areas, thus providing adequate park facilities for underprivileged classes.

The city now has about 1,200 acres of park land, including golf courses and Lakewood park.

Two harmless pistol shots were fired at Harvard College, a one-pound gun boomed interruptions to Syracuse University's demonstration, and members of Harvard's executive committee and the college appeared with wooden swords and helmets.

In the east the turnout was dampened by a drizzling rain, and in the west it brought frowns to the faces of principals and deans.

The "strike" called under the auspices of six youths' organizations, was for the hour between 11 a. m. and 12 noon but at many institutions it was deferred until later in the day.

New York police estimated that 1,000 students turned out in Manhattan's Bronx, but the strike call received only a lukewarm response in Brooklyn.

New York's largest demonstrations were at Columbia University, where a woman speaker was pelted with an egg, which she ward off with an umbrella, and at the College of the City.

High School Meetings Few.

High school meetings were few and unorganized. The New York board of education said reports from 27 high schools showed a total enrollment of 12,000 pupils indicated that only 600 turned out. Jack Mello, an organizer, claimed a turnout of 22,000 students in 15 schools, however.

EASTMAN PERFECTS NEW COLOR FILM FOR THE MOVIES

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 12.—(AP)—A new color process for movie makers, "as easy to take as black and white," and with results "just as good" was announced today by the Eastman Kodak Company.

While available at present solely for use in the 16 mm. size, said Dr. C. E. Kenneth Mees, vice president of the company in charge of research and development, the new process is expected to be available soon for professional studio production.

The new film is coated with five layers of color emulsion so thin that the total thickness is no more than the ordinary movie film. The images in color are formed by an "extremely complex" processing system.

Dr. Mees said the process is the invention of Leopold Mannes and Leo Godowsky Jr., two musicians whose names were well known in the musical world several years ago when they commenced the study of color photography as a hobby. After several years of collaboration they joined the research staff of the Eastman Company in 1931.

CULBERTSONS WIN BY 16,130 POINTS

By ELY CULBERTSON. CROCKFORD'S CLUB N E W YORK, April 12.—The Culbertsons' system and the Culbertson family defeated Mr. and Mrs. P. Hal Sims and their system by 16,130 points in the history-making 150-rubber match, which ended tonight at Crockford's Club.

This has been a glorious victory for the new 1935 Culbertson system, without shame for the Simses in their defeat. They went down as they began, fighting with the cards and against the Culbertsons—never between them. Between my wife and myself, too, there was nothing but peace, harmony and kind words throughout the 150 rubbers and this undoubtedly establishes a world record for married couple games. I must confess, however, that to Mr. Sims goes the victory in the number of card-dealing turns used to his wife. "If I would, I could not keep up with him."

Sims is one of the most magnificent card players I have ever seen. I feel that I can give too much credit to my adversaries for the game they played, because I believe no pair in the world could possibly have played better than they. They, too, played this new 1935 Culbertson system. The Sims battle was like a cavalry charge on a machine gun—most spectacular, gallant, hopeless.

In many respects this comparison might well be drawn between the two systems as well. The keenest weapons in the Sims arsenal—their three-bid and their two-bid—were like the gleaming swords of the cavalry—awesome looking but seldom used because modern warfare seldom is a hand-to-hand affair. The effectiveness of these bids, never once used during the three weeks of steady play, is lost because the hands on which they can be used are almost never held. I am convinced that in the course of this 150-rubber nearly every imaginable bridge situation has come up to test the new 1935 Culbertson system.

At the end of the 150th rubber the pair standings were:

Advantage	Culbertson	Sims
Rubbers won tonight	16,130	2
Total rubbers won	81	69
Total points	127,270	111,140
Total tricks	1,729	1,751
Total kings held	1,751	1,785
Total queens held	1,696	1,784

Plan for Negro Nation Is Charged to Herndon

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP)—An asserted communist plan to set up a negro nation in the south was presented to the supreme court by the state of Georgia today to support the conviction of Angelo Herndon, negro, for violating the state's old insurrection law.

Literature found in Herndon's possession, J. Walter LeCraw, attorney for the state, said, was evidence of Herndon's plan to overthrow the existing government.

The question before the high court was whether Georgia had deprived Herndon of the constitutional rights of freedom of speech and assembly in constructing his communist activities as tending to incite force against the existing authority.

Whitney N. Seymour, counsel for Herndon, contended such a construction denied the negro these rights, that the "revolution" mentioned in literature found in his possession did not necessarily imply use of force and there was nothing to show a "clear and present danger" to the state.

Herndon was sentenced today to 18 to 20 years' imprisonment three years ago on a Georgia statute dating back to 1866.

Dust Clouds Appear In Georgia Sections

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 12.—(AP)—Various parts of Georgia, from Augusta in the northeast to Quitman in the southwest, reported dust clouds today, apparently coming from the dust storms in the southwest.

In Augusta, the dust was thick enough to cause eyes to smart, and to cover furniture.

Quinn reported the sky there yellow due to the dust, with the sun shining through the clouds dimly.

In Atlanta, the airport office of the weather bureau said visibility this morning in Augusta was only three miles, and at Jacksonville, Fla., only two miles, due to dust.

Social workers, ministers, teachers and others from all parts of the state are expected to attend the sessions and numbers of them will participate in the elaborate program.

Dr. Herman L. Turner, of Atlanta, will address the opening session on "Spiritual Values to Be Preserved in a Program of Economic Recovery." Thomas B. Mimms, acting executive secretary of the State Department of Public Welfare, and president of the conference, will preside.

Using as its theme, "Social Welfare in a Program of Economic Recovery," the conference, will present leading social workers in discussions of "Implications of a New Deal in American Life."

Miss Gray B. Shepperson, director of the Federal Relief Administration in Georgia; Miss Lea Taylor, head resident of Chicago Commons, noted community center; Miss Rhoda K. Cator Woolford and James P. Faulkner, of Atlanta.

Officers of the conference, in addition to Mr. Mimms, include Miss Nelle Franklin, of Albany, first vice president; Mrs. E. B. Harold, of Macon, second vice president, and Mrs. Mary Kate Dusk, of Atlanta, executive secretary.

Last year approximately 1,500 attended the conference in Macon. An even greater attendance is expected this year. The conference was organized in 1924 by Joseph C. Lagan, executive secretary of the Atlanta Family Welfare Society; Frank Miller, executive director of the newly created Public Welfare Department of Fulton (Atlanta) county, and R. L. Vansant, director of the rural rehabilitation program in Georgia, will be among the speakers.

Superintendent Mark Smith, of Thomaston, was elected a director for a three-year term.

Ramsey Speaks. Ramsey told the convention that before he would permit its schools through revenue from liquor which "blights the country's manhood and steals virtue from womanhood" he would return to a one-room school house.

Reference was made to a "very prominent bishop" in debate over the resolution. Superintendent J. E. Ma, of Americus, in making the allusion said he "came into a superintendent the same question and asked if it wasn't too controversial for the educators to consider. To go on as we are now," he said, "will hold up example for the youth which encourages disrespect for law."

J. P. Manley, of Spaulding county, gaining the floor, declared, "thousands of gallons of hooch liquor were being made in his section each week. 'If we are going to continue the behavior we have been guilty of during the last several years I don't know what will become of this country. It is creating disrespect for law. If we continue to breed a generation of racketeers where shall we end? If we could legislate morals we could easily settle the liquor question that way.'"

J. J. Gaines, of Savannah, told the convention it was "unfortunate that the question had been brought up. Identifying himself as a dry, he told the teachers 'we need all our energy to take care of our problems here.'"

The liquor resolution was the only one offered at tonight's session. Resolutions dealing with other matters are expected to come up tomorrow.

Speaking at a joint conference of school superintendents, high school principals and other groups, Dr. Sanford landed the New Deal and said the country would profit from the experiments in governmental operations "because it has made its citizens read more, think more and discuss governmental and social affairs" more than at any other period.

Based on Ideals. "The New Deal cannot fail," he said, "because it is based on sound ideals." He predicted a "New Deal" in education, saying that the trend now is toward a combination of cultural and vocational learning.

"As an example, curricular changes already made are putting young people to studying about themselves, rather than about tadpoles."

Federal aid for rural schools of Georgia was predicted by M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, in a telegram to the convention the day from Washington. He wired that he did not believe Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, had any idea of "discriminating against the state."

Attempts to amend the association's constitution to provide for "more democratic" representation on the governing body were laid aside for this year. The convention referred the matter to a committee for study and presentation at next year's meeting.

The proposal would have created a board of 50 delegates, five from each congressional district, and was aimed at giving more teachers a voice in mapping the work of the association.

Guy H. Wells, president of Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville, was named president of the Peabody Alumni Association today. A. J. Hargrave, superintendent of schools at Dublin, was re-elected vice president.

The stand of Emory University in Atlanta for "freedom of thought and speech in training, in research and in dealing with today's problems" was praised by Harry S. Strieder, in addressing the Emory alumni luncheon.

"The danger to liberty and democracy in America today," he said, "lies not in communism or socialism, but in the present incredible fears that can produce such unspeakable outrages as we have seen in recent years. The worst foes of democracy is terrorism and intimidation."

Murals Presented. Students of Bass Junior High school in Atlanta exhibited a striking set of mural paintings totaling 72 feet in length, the contents of today's business session. The paintings, depicting Georgia bi-centennial subjects, were brought to the auditorium stage by the Atlanta students.

Dr. Philip Welter, chancellor of the University System, will address the convention at tomorrow's closing session. Dr. Lacy Allen, of Albany, state commissioner of the American Legion, also is on the concluding program.

Atlanta Re-elected. The elementary principals' department at a meeting today re-elected Dr. W. H. Whitworth, Atlanta, president, and heard discussions of teachers' professional and economic problems.

Other officers were renamed as follows: Miss Rowena Riley, Savannah, first vice president; Professor T. M. Atkinson, Valdosta, second vice president; Miss Fidelity Miller, Decatur, secretary.

New directors named were: Miss Ruxia Wesley, Atlanta; Robert Dewar, Valdosta, and Mrs. H. B. Caraker, Decatur.

Dr. William McAndrew, retired veteran school superintendent in New York, talked on teaching methods that hold the attention of the child. He recommended changing seats, singing, and reading of poetry as methods of keeping students refreshed in class, and declared reading is only one-third as effective a method of learning as oral work.

Dr. Willis Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, talked on school teaching and school leading. He said principals should identify themselves with every community factor, from home to movies.

SOCIAL WORKERS PLAN MEETING AT COLUMBUS

Human Welfare Problems To Be Studied at Session Opening Sunday.

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 12.—(AP)—Problems of human welfare will be discussed from many angles at the Georgia conference on social work which opens here Sunday night to continue through Wednesday noon.

ATLANTA, GA., APRIL 13, 1935.

LOCAL WORK-RELIEF PROJECTS

Consumption of the proposed slum-clearance items in the proposed list of work-relief projects in Atlanta would remove the worst of the eyesore slum areas adjoining the business center of the city, provide modern housing facilities and recreation areas for those of low incomes, and clean up sections that are constant threats to the health of the entire community.

In addition to these new projects, former requests filed with the PWA for aid in the improvement of schools, sewers, streets, and the plants at Grady hospital, Battle Hill and the city stockade, and in the construction of a new city auditorium, have been transferred to the new federal fund. The vital need for these improvements has been emphasized time and again.

The total cost of all the projects submitted would reach approximately $40,000,000.

Most of the areas involved in the slum-clearance program were residential sections when the city had less than a third of the population it now has. With the expansion of the population, and of the areas devoted to business, these sections have been gradually abandoned and the antiquated and obsolete structures have gradually fallen into a condition of disrepair that makes them unfit for habitation and a danger to the surrounding areas.

The $17,500,000 program which has been presented to federal authorities by Alderman Gilliam, representing the city government, contemplates the razing of hundreds of such structures and the substitution of park space and modern one-family homes to cost approximately $2,000 each. Such homes could be rented for little more than is being paid by the tenants of the miserable structures they would replace.

The program also contemplates the securing of $200,000 of the work-relief fund for the enlargement of the city crematory. This project is a sound business proposal, since the loan could be amortized by the increased sale of steam from the expanded plant.

The additional project under which the government would clear and turn over to the city for use as a civic center the block upon which both the state capitol and the city hall face, and which is in close proximity to the Fulton county courthouse, would be the first step toward realizing a civic improvement long sought by Atlanta.

Alderman Gilliam has been significantly successful in his negotiations with federal officials, and the improvements submitted for Atlanta under the work-relief program comprise a sound and comprehensive plan from each feature of which the entire city would benefit either directly or indirectly.

A hopeful prospect is presented, therefore, that the proposed eradication of Atlanta's major civic spots will prove acceptable to the government.

BICYCLES ON THE STREETS

The traffic accident Thursday in which a negro boy riding a bicycle suddenly emerged from a side street into the path of an automobile driven by a prominent physician, and was knocked under the wheels of a following car, illustrates a local traffic peril that is steadily becoming more acute.

The streets are filled at all hours of the day and night by bicycle messenger boys who generally pay no attention to the traffic ordinances. Not only do they shoot out of side streets into the midst of traffic on main arteries, as was the case in Thursday's accident, but they "snake" through fast-moving cars, often on the wrong side of the street.

Scarcely a day passes without some of these boys being knocked Nudism Triumphant.

France has decided to go in for nudism, I read in the public prints. The French people never cared an awful lot about sport. They have also a healthy sense of the ridicule of excess. In France ridicule kills. Hence the nudist cult, which thrives so mightily in Germany, never had many adherents in France and those adherents kept out of sight. All this is going to change now. The nudists are going to have full freedom. Society is going in for nudism, and society has the discrete backing of the government, and especially of the military authorities.

The signal for the nudist assault was given at the Salle Pleyel the other day, where society leaders, military chiefs, diplomats, statesmen and the editors of the fashionable journals had assembled. The meeting was under the chairmanship of the Baron Andre de Foulquier, who is the arbiter of elegance, taste and beauty in Paris. The meeting opened with a parade of nude young ladies across the stage and a selection of music. Then Monsieur de Foulquier took the floor and the audience was given to understand that nudism is a good thing and that every point of view except that of the clock and suit boy, I should think. But these good fellows were reassured that the campaign for nudism would be accompanied by a campaign to dress fashionably at the same time.

The situation is steadily growing worse and some action should be taken that will minimize this traffic danger.

UP TO THE CATTLE BREEDERS

While the federal and state experts in charge of the program to be staged for the control of the screw worm in the southeast have exhibited assuring vigor in fackling what has already assumed the proportions of a herculean task, the warning is issued that the chief burden of the work rests of necessity with the cattle breeders.

Dr. F. C. Bishop, of the Federal Bureau of Entomology, who has come to Georgia to launch the screw worm campaign, warns that "while the government agencies are planning a victorious campaign against the pest, the problem is one which the farmers themselves have to solve; we can only lend a hand by showing them what to do."

The federal expert expresses the firm conviction that the adoption of the methods of fighting the screw worm advocated by the United States Department of Agriculture will bring the losses to a minimum, but again emphasizes that "all of us must work together vigorously if we are going to give protection to the rapidly developing livestock industry and make farming profitable in this section."

The rapid spread of the screw worm in Georgia within 18 months after its first appearance in a south Georgia county was largely due to the apathy of the breeders and the lack of funds which tied the hands of state experts, who realized the seriousness of the situation but were unable to take the necessary steps to combat it.

Not until The Constitution last fall called attention to the fact that thousands of cattle had already been attacked in Georgia, and that the pest had spread over two-thirds of the area of the state, was there a general realization that "unless" its ravages were controlled not only the livestock industry in Georgia was doomed, but that wild life would be endangered and a serious threat exist to the health of the people of the state.

The call for a campaign against the screw worm by the state and federal governments, with the full co-operation of the breeders and local authorities, brought immediate response from the members of the Georgia delegation in congress and as a result a fund of $480,000 is now available for the fight to eliminate a pest that offers the most serious threat to the agricultural welfare of the state since the advent of the boll weevil.

It must be constantly borne in mind, as Dr. Bishop points out, that the success of the campaign depends upon the full co-operation not only of the state and federal governments, but of the breeders and the people generally of every county in which the worm has put in its appearance.

The beef-producing industry in Georgia, still in its infancy, means too much to the future prosperity of the state for any possible step to be left untaken to control to the greatest degree possible this newly developed threat to its existence.

The Case of M. Beheim.

Then Monsieur le Baron de Montgeot took the floor. This gentleman took the defense of nudism on moral grounds. I don't know how he did this, but the paper says he did it by saying this because St. Peter is not among us any more to punish the Ananias. Anyhow, the Baron cited the case of the Abbe Beheim.

Now every Parisian knows Monsieur Abbe Beheim. I don't know him personally, but I see him often enough, as I live near where he has his office. I see him in and out. This priest is a giant of a man. Outside his office, I should say yet, hangs a huge sign which says: "Before the theater, the cinema, the newspaper or magazine or newspaper to be brought into your home, consult the Abbe Beheim." Many people avail themselves of this service.

Once in a while the Abbe takes a stroll along the boulevards. When the bookshelves and the newspaper-keepers see this Hercules in a cassock looming up in the distance, they bring their stock in safety. For the least spicy illustration on the cover of a magazine will so arouse the ire of Monsieur Beheim that he promptly seizes the offending book and whistles and tears it to shreds. He has been arrested a hundred times for this. But arrests don't stop him.

The call for a campaign against the screw worm by the state and federal governments, with the full co-operation of the breeders and local authorities, brought immediate response from the members of the Georgia delegation in congress and as a result a fund of $480,000 is now available for the fight to eliminate a pest that offers the most serious threat to the agricultural welfare of the state since the advent of the boll weevil.

It must be constantly borne in mind, as Dr. Bishop points out, that the success of the campaign depends upon the full co-operation not only of the state and federal governments, but of the breeders and the people generally of every county in which the worm has put in its appearance.

The beef-producing industry in Georgia, still in its infancy, means too much to the future prosperity of the state for any possible step to be left untaken to control to the greatest degree possible this newly developed threat to its existence.

"Ex-Premier Herriot expresses profound sorrow over the French default." Come, come, Edouard, there is no need of both of us worrying.

The Prince of Wales has been presented an ox, an animal that sees in two directions. Probably the ideal bodyguard, if the prince is to resume yodeling.

Mr. Darrow, who predicted the eighteenth amendment would never be repealed, is trying again. "Good times," says Persevering Clarence, "are gone forever."

Though things look bad, no war actually threatens, says Lloyd George. Another little brink, according to Dave, won't do us any harm.

A front-rank radio comic is being sued for $100,000 by his gagman. The expense of the archeology alone must have been enormous.

A pretty instance of reciprocity is noted between the states. Dry Kansas is trading its dust for strong Missouri beer.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

THE STERN FATHER AND THE SPOILED CHILD.

A correspondent of indeterminate sex submits a problem:

"My son has one child, a girl 3 years old. He is stern towards the child. She is mentally sensitive. He often punishes her severely, so that she cries deeply and intensely, and then commands under threat of more punishment that she stop crying at once."

"The child makes all the effort she can, but how can emotion so excited be subdued or controlled? Is not such a practice injurious to a child's mental health?"

"I am not concerned with the physical punishment she gets, but I fear for the results of this compelling repression of emotion."

"If you assure me there is no danger, then I shall rest at ease. If there is danger in it, will you please write me a reply which I can show to my son?"

From "Sherborn's Child" (McGraw-Hill, New York). I quote this pertinent observation:

"Nothing so surely sets the habit-mold in the undesired pattern as does overemphasis or punishment or the creation of a violent emotional situation."

From another chapter in the same fine book:

"The more drastic the child's sense of thwarting or injustice the more intense is the energy charge in the nervous system. To struggle with a child who is antagonized by a surplus of adrenin in his blood stream is to add fuel to the fire. He is physically (chemically) unable to relax or come out of his super-tension until the energy charge has spent itself. When both parent and child are suffering from 'adrenin intoxication' conflict may continue until the child is exhausted and often parent has committed excesses in punishment which appall him when he comes to himself and views his conduct in retrospect."

Recently the press had harrowing reports of two instances where young fathers slapped to death babes a few weeks old because the babies cried and would not cease crying. I suppose every father who has had anything to do with the intimate care of his children will feel a degree of sympathy for the parents in these still, there is a sadistic element in this violent punishment of children.

I still believe in whipping in some circumstances for the discipline of children, provided the punishment is administered when the parent is in a state of anger. Yet it seems that the most effective discipline is that which the intelligent parent enforces by means of a simple system of rewards or pleasures given or withheld.

To many readers the allusion to "adrenin intoxication" in the paragraph quoted from "Sherborn's Child" will not mean anything. Adrenin is the internal secretion or hor-

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

EXAGGERATIONS

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Whenever silver comes in contact with a politician, a chemical reaction takes place in both. The politicians here handle gold or wheat issues as coolly as if they were handling a sack of potatoes. But, whenever the silver issue gets near them, they are transformed into whirling prophets of an ecstatic realm of grotesque exaggerations.

This was what happened again on the latest silver action by the treasury. It was advertised in some quarters as a step to boost commodity prices. Also as a move toward inflation. None of the responsible government officials said such things out loud. But they did drop hints in quarters which would give these interpretations the widest circulation.

The simple truth seems to be that the treasury had to boost the price of silver again to keep above the world price. It was an automatic step, required when the world price passed above the domestic price.

And the reason why the domestic price must always be kept above the world price is that the silver senators would raise glory hallelujah if it wasn't. That is the whole story in a paragraph. The only commodity price which will be increased is that of silver. The only inflation which will be caused is in the chests of silver senators and in the pockets of the speculators who have been shrewdly buying abroad.

Those who are neither politicians nor silverites now see certain future probabilities more clearly.

The most important one is that the next time the world price goes above the domestic price, President Roosevelt will hike the ante again. When that will be, no one can tell, except Mr. Roosevelt. He controls the world price as well as the domestic price because he is the biggest purchaser in the world market. It was he who forced his own hand this time by actively buying world silver and bidding the world price up over 54 cents an ounce. Now he can buy and bid up the world price again over his new 71-cent price, hike the domestic price again and work himself up to $1.29 an ounce.

It seems to be a new kind of New Deal card game, in which Mr. Roosevelt plays all the hands and gets the only peek at the kitty besides.

GUESS

From these facts, you may conclude that the best way to get rich is to take your relief check and buy silver in Montreal. It looks like easy money, but there are several unknown factors. The main one is Mr. Roosevelt.

While he is committed to a silver price of $1.29, he can take 50 or 100 years to arrive at it, which would be too long for most speculators to wait. During the last 16 months, he has raised silver from 45 cents to 71 cents, but you cannot accept that speed as any indication for the future. Furthermore, he could turn around tomorrow and devalue the silver dollar commensurate with the gold dollar and cause the world price of silver to go down. No one expects him to do that, because he has gone too far to back out that way profitably.

What the best authorities here guess is that he may hike the price once or twice more, possibly some time next year, because that is a political campaign year. After that, he may not care what the silver senators say.

This, of course, is purely an expert guess, based on the way the thing has gone thus far.

LOAN?

There are other ramifications, extending all the way to China. The Chinese have suffered from our purchases of world silver, which have depleted their silver currency backing. Further purchases will deplete it still more.

For this reason, the insiders here are now talking again about the prospect of an international loan to China.

Some sums around $100,000,000 are being mentioned, with Great Britain, and perhaps France, taking a share.

CARTWHEELS

A peculiar angle of this silver business is that the treasury has recently been minting more silver dollars. It does not need them, because it has more than $500,000,000 of cartwheels now in its vaults. Nevertheless, it minted about $3,500,000 more last year. Some more were minted the other day at San Francisco. It is a very economical pastime, costing only one cent for each silver dollar.

BALL CARRIER

You may have noticed that the quarterback handed the ball a few days ago to Madame Halfback Perkins. She has been sitting on the sidelines for many months, while Fullback Richberg has been running all the labor plays.

The inside on that is that Miss Perkins took up her benching privately with Quarterback Roosevelt in New York recently. It is understood that she pointed out (not, perhaps, in detail) that Richberg acted as ball carrier on the automobile code over labor's protests, the newspaper code matter before the National Labor Relations Board, and the cigarette code. Miss Perkins was not only ignored in all these cases, but actually overruled on the cigarette code.

This is at least one good reason why she was given the rubber industry ball on the threatened strike play.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen

My Dear Louise:

Joe Smith never grew weary of rebuking the nagging wife, but our callers this afternoon gave you living evidence that she is not the only offender.

If there is any poor creature who deserves more sympathy than the hen-pecked husband, it is the hen-pecked wife—the meek and long-suffering wife whose spoiled and petted hen-husband regards himself as her divinely-appointed instructor and the keeper of her soul.

Hen-pecking and nagging are not confined to matrimony nor to any particular gender. They are found in the most annoying practices included in the vice of nagging, and all of them have their root in an egotistic disregard of the other person's rights and feelings.

I suppose every nagger began by demanding and getting her own way as a very small girl and thereafter failing to learn that other people also have a way which they like to have.

The common scold doesn't get that way in a day or a year, but sours slowly like vinegar, and the expert nagger must begin early and grow hateful by degrees.

One way to begin is to assume that all persons who fail to do things as you do them are nit-wits who need correcting. The correcting may be done very sweetly, or even garnished with an apology, but in any case it serves to humiliate or enrage the victim and is excellent practice in hatefulness.

Whatever the other person may be doing—telling a story, pronouncing a word, making tea, arranging flowers, driving a car, inviting guests, dusting a hat, dusting a table or anything else under the sun, he is doing it in the way that pleases him or seems right to him, and that is not to be tolerated.

You must correct him. With gentle patience or coldly superior dignity, you must set him right or undo what he has done and do it your way. After a few years of that you will develop the fixed idea that nobody has a right to do or say anything except in the way that you approve, and you will become a chronic corrector with a know-it-all complex and a razor-sharp tongue—if somebody doesn't give you rat poison.

Love, DAD.

Notables Join in Tribute At Last Rites for Ochs

Mourners From All Walks of Life Gather at Bier in Temple Emanu-El, New York.

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP)—New York paid a final tribute to Adolph S. Ochs today and the body of the publisher was laid to rest in a peaceful sarcophagus to the north.

Blue Star Kills The Itch Gums

To get rid of itch, rash, tetter, foot itch, ringworm or eczema, cover with soothing Blue Star Ointment which contains tested medicine that melts, soaks in quickly and kills the itch. Money back if first jar fails.

A hushed group of mourners drawn from all walks of life gathered at the bier in Temple Emanu-El.

A drizzling rain fell in upper Fifth avenue and the flags on all city buildings flapped at half-staff as notables of the state, industry and journalism joined with virtually the entire staff of the New York Times and members of the Ochs family.

Approximately 3,000 persons assembled in the massive temple and a crowd of several hundreds lingered outside in the rain during the brief, solemn services.

A blanket of orchids, white lilies and lavender sweet peas covered the coffin, which had been borne up from Chattanooga, Tenn., where Mr. Ochs died last Monday, and floral tributes were heaped around the altar.

Dr. S. H. Goldenson, rabbi of Emanu-El, began the 23-minute service with the reading of Psalm 24.

Cantor Moses Rudinow and the temple choir then sang "I Set the Lord Always Before Me."

After that the voice of Dr. Goldenson was lifted in the words from Psalm 50 and the twenty-ninth chapter of the book of Job, and as he concluded the choir sang "Trust in the Lord."

Rabbi Jonah B. Wise took up the reading, from the twenty-third psalm, and finished with a prayer of commendation. "The Lord hath given and the Lord hath taken away. Blessed for ever and ever be the name of the Lord."

Slowly then the two rabbis led the procession toward the main entrance.

Following them came the honorary pallbearers, headed by Governor Herbert H. Lehman and Rollo Ogden, editor of the New York Times.

Immediately after the coffin, borne on the shoulders of 10 bearers, came members of the family, including Mrs. Ochs and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hays Sulzberger, daughter and son-in-law.

In the procession were Roy Howard, publisher; Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Reid, J. David Stern, publisher; Felix Warburg, Bernard M. Baruch, Frank Parker Stockbridge, magazine editor; and the justices of the appellate division.

Also there were Dean Carl W. Ackerman, of the Columbia School of Journalism; James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany; Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press; Mrs. Paul Block, Harry Guggenheim, former ambassador to Cuba; Paul M. Warburg, Victor Rieder, publisher, and many others.

The honorary pallbearers included Owen D. Young, John W. Davis, Charles M. Schwab, Clark Howell, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Howard Davis, Alfred E. Smith, Judge Irving Lehman, Frank B. Rowes and Henry Morgenthau Sr.

Before he entered the temple, former Governor Smith, a friend of 30 years, had said: "I've come to say goodbye."

At the start of the services the Associated Press halted its wires and suspended its activities throughout the world for two minutes for silent tribute. Rengo Simbun Sha, worldwide Japanese news agency did likewise, and in Italy the Stefani News Agency joined in the mourning.

After the services the cortege proceeded to Temple Israel cemetery at Mount Hope, where Mr. Ochs was buried in a quiet spot not far from his summer home in White Plains.

The sarcophagus was made of marble from Tennessee, where he had begun his publishing career in Chattanooga.

Week-End Will See Usual Toll; Be Insured Against Accidents

Another week-end is here! Another Sunday will dawn tomorrow when you and the wife and the kids will pile into the old bus to take a spin in the country.

Thousands will do the same. Roads will be jammed with cars. Reckless drivers will be everywhere; speeders will dart in and out; accident and disaster will stalk on every hand.

Just as sure as fate some persons—no one can tell how many—will meet death. Others will be maimed and injured. Suffering and financial want will follow.

Will you be on the casualty list? You can't foretell. But you can be prepared to say, should your name be among the dead or injured, that you have guarded your dependents against want and discomfort. You can do it cheaply and efficiently.

The insurance offered you through The Atlanta Constitution is issued by the North American Accident Insurance Company of Chicago, Ill., which company has already paid Atlanta Constitution subscribers over $200,000. The insurance is offered to subscribers of the daily and Sunday Constitution and immediate dependent members of the subscriber's family between the ages of 15 and 65 on the one subscription going into the home at a small registration fee of 20c with application and 10c per month thereafter in addition to the subscription price, or $1. each per policy per year in advance to subscribers who live in Atlanta and Atlanta suburbs where we have carrier delivery. Out-of-town subscribers can have this insurance by paying $1 per policy per year in advance.

This insurance offered through The Atlanta Constitution provides for the payment of sums ranging downward from $10,000 for travel, $1,000 for auto and pedestrian deaths resulting from certain specified accidents, heavy sums for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for total disability resulting from accidents set forth in the policy, which is at the rate of $48.33 per month.

In sending application for insurance, the applicant must state name in full, give age and occupation, and if beneficiary is desired the full Christian name of beneficiary must be given and relationship of same to the insured.

Do your duty! Protect yourself and family today. Tomorrow may be too late!

School Probe Group Meets Monday Night

W. W. Matthews, chairman of the Atlanta Board of Education's personnel investigating committee, yesterday set the first meeting for 7:30 o'clock Monday night, as D. M. Therrell, seventh ward commissioner and leader of a pro-Sutton minority bloc on the board, charged openly that Mayor Key is responsible for the board fight to curtail the power of Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools.

Matthews heads the group which will investigate salaries of all employees. This committee probably will file a report recommending "many changes" in the fiscal operations of the school system. Another committee, headed by Ed S. Cook, third ward commissioner, is charged with the responsibility of probing the administration policies, and probably will map out and recommend several pertinent shifts.

Therrell, asserting that the mayor through trading had secured four votes on the board of education, appealed to the people of Atlanta to "wake up to the menacing situation confronting us as it actually exists, before it is too late." He promised to "give the people all the facts, even at their dirtiest worst."

BRADLEY IS LINKED WITH CLYDE SMITH

Ex-Woodward Aid May Have Been 'Brains' Behind
Bond Firm.

Possibility that W. Clyde Smith, notorious confidence man now a fugitive from justice, may have been the "brains" behind B. R. Bradley in the $700,000 swindle of American Bond & Share Corporation investors will be investigated by federal authorities, it was intimated yesterday by the district attorney's office.

Bradley, president of American Bond & Share, is being sought by government agents following the collapse of the corporation. It is believed that he may have fled to Canada, where Smith, who fled a $25,000 bond here, is known to make his headquarters.

Smith was reputedly the "brains" of the notorious Floyd Woodward bunco syndicate which operated in Atlanta 15 years ago, cleaning up approximately $1,000,000 through various bunco games.

Bradley, according to the district attorney's office, is known to have been in Atlanta at that time, and supposedly was a "runner" for the bunco syndicate. He is known to have maintained contacts with Smith during the intervening years and to have sent money to Mrs. Smith quite recently.

Wife Here Last Week.

Mrs. Smith was in Atlanta a week ago, calling upon Mrs. Lindsey, a former assistant district attorney, in an effort to have her husband admitted to parole if he would surrender. She asked Mr. Lindsey if he would support a parole plea, and was informed that he would not.

Federal authorities, however, believe that Mrs. Smith may have been in Atlanta for some other purpose, and are endeavoring to trace her movements during the period she was in the city.

District Attorney Lawrence Camp has been in possession of information that Bradley was an associate of Smith. Arch Eberhart, former Woodward lieutenant, and other members of the Woodward gang, only a short time ago the fugitive American Bond & Share president, sent Mrs. Eberhart a check for $200 after her husband had been arrested in Albany, N. Y., on a swindle charge.

Extradition Not Possible.

No extradition treaty existing between the United States and Canada covers the charge of using the mails to defraud, so that Smith has been able to make his headquarters in Toronto, coming to the United States only occasionally. He has, it is declared, acted as the guiding genius in a number of confidence games worked in American cities in recent years.

It is considered very probable that Bradley may have taken advantage of the lack of extradition treaty to take refuge in Canada with Smith. Federal authorities, however, are pushing the search for the fugitive bond and share head in every section of the country.

Firm Adjudged Bankrupt.

While federal authorities were continuing their investigation of the entire case, Judge E. C. Martin Underwood yesterday signed a petition adjudging the American Bond & Share Corporation of Georgia an involuntary bankrupt. Hearings on similar petitions against affiliates of the corporation are still in progress.

John C. Ingram, secretary and treasurer of the corporation, is still being held in New York, while employees in the office of Jon Dean Steward, clerk of the court, are working feverishly to prepare copies of the 76-page indictment against him.

COLONIAL TRADING COMPANY UNDER FEDERAL INJUNCTION

CARSON CITY, Nev., April 12.—(AP)—The Colonial Trading Company, of Reno, Nev., said by government investigators to have collected $329,000 from investors throughout the country, today was under a federal court injunction enjoining it from continuing business operations.

Application for the injunction was made by agents of the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission, who have been conducting an inquiry into the company's affairs in Reno for the past two weeks.

The findings of their inquiry will be laid before the Nevada federal grand jury, now in session, for possible action against Arthur B. Jones and his wife, principal officers of the firm.

Thomas J. Lynch, Washington, D. C., one of the investigators, said the company collected thousands of dollars from small investors and used the BATON ROUGE, La., April 12.—(AP)—Disension between Senator Huey P. Long and George M. Although he continued silent about the matter, Wallace spent several hours in his state house office in the morning and afternoon and late in the day was declared to be "too busy" to see anyone.

Bond Firm Nipped in Nick of Time, SEC Attorney Tells Lawyers' Club

The American Bond & Share Corporation was just ready to commence fleeing investors on a nation-wide scale when the scheme was nipped by the government, Robert E. Kline, attached to the general counsel's office of the Securities and Exchange Commission, told members of the Atlanta Lawyers' Club, at their regular meeting last night in the Citizens & Southern Bank building.

Mr. Kline launched the investigation that led to the exposure of the American Bond & Share Corporation as a "Ponzi" swindle.

"The scheme used by American Bond & Share was one that was old when Ponzi gave it his name," Mr. Kline told the lawyers. "Fabulous returns on supposed investments were actually paid to the first customers. Supposedly, these dividends were made possible by skillful operation of the company's management."

"Actually, the payments were made out of money received from those on the sucker list, who were themselves attracted by the payments made to others. Operations had been going on in Atlanta for some time, where the necessary record of fancy dividends was supposed to have been made. Offices had just been opened in Washington, Wilmington and New York and the 'old ball game' was ready to start."

"Fortunately, for hundreds of American investors, just at that time simultaneous investigations were ordered by the Securities and Exchange Commission in Atlanta, Washington, Wilmington and New York. In spite of a brave display of virtue, but a violent unwillingness to let the commission's accountants examine their books, the whole scheme was found to be a huge bubble, which readily collapsed."

At least $1,000,000 had been invested in American Bond & Share and its affiliates, while present assets are only $20,000, the securities commission attorney informed his audience.

Austria Lauds Josef In Military Report

VIENNA, April 12.—(AP)—Austria today linked preliminary preparations to restore the pre-war system of universal military service with praise of the pre-war monarchy under Emperor Franz Josef.

Revealing that the recent decision to increase the army, limited to 30,000 men under the treaty of St. Germain, would involve restoration of universal conscription, the government announced public attention simultaneously would be directed to the greatness and glory of the ousted monarchy.

Colonel Walter Adam, the government's chief of propaganda, explained that actual renewal of compulsory military service would await the confidently expected granting of arms equality rights to Austria.

However, it was stated, details of reorganization of the army are being worked out.

Warm Spring Weather Awaited Here Today

Atlanta may expect a return of spring weather today, accompanied by clear skies and balmy breezes, according to George W. Mindling, meteorologist here.

The mercury will climb to around 60 degrees this afternoon after touching a low of 42 degrees early in the morning. Sunday will be even warmer and likewise fair, the weather observer declared.

The city experienced a touch of winter Friday, the temperature failing to climb above 51 degrees during the day after a low of 46. A light frost in low places was seen as possible during the early morning hours today, but was not expected to do any damage.

Decatur Mass Meeting To Discuss Water Hike

Decatur citizens will discuss the proposed five-cent increase in the Decatur water rate at a mass meeting at the DeKalb county courthouse Tuesday night.

The proposed increase in the rate from 25 to 30 cents a thousand cubic feet, with a proposed minimum charge of $1.50, is sought as a means of raising $22,000 for the construction of eight additional school classrooms and a new water reservoir, according to a resolution adopted by the Decatur city commission.

Barrymores Silent On Divorce Rumor

REVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 12.—(AP)—If a divorce is impending between John Barrymore and Dolores Costello, nothing could be learned about it today.

A supposition that they might be separating sprang mainly from a report that Dolores Costello Barrymore and the couple's two children were about to move from their home to an apartment, while the handsome movie actor continues his prolonged absence in the east.

At the palatial hilltop estate, servants said Mrs. Barrymore was out. At the home of friends last night, she said she had nothing to say.

A member of a law firm she was reported to have consulted recently asserted when and if matters shape themselves so it is necessary, a statement may be issued. From New York, John F. Finn, one of Barrymore's lawyers, was quoted as saying the actor had not indicated any intention of suing for divorce nor said anything about notifying his wife to vacate their home, as rumored in Hollywood.

Fisherman Solves His Bait Problem With Snake Who Loves His Noggin

CHICAGO, April 12.—(UP)—Chester McCarty, of Portland, Ore., who admitted that he "might have had a little advantage because I'm a lawyer," today won the title of master liar in a fish story contest staged by the Inland Walpole League.

Dr. George M. Oppermann, of Buffalo, won second prize.

McCarty's piscatorial prevarication follows:

"I was fishing on the banks of the Deschutes river in Oregon and wasn't having a dim's worth of luck with my bait. So I started looking for a frog. But I'm a little near-sighted and when I finally found one I failed to see that it was in the mouth of a vicious-looking rattlesnake.

"When I discovered my mistake I poured a few drops down the snake's throat from a bottle of whiskey. He dropped the frog like a hot-cake and I proceeded to bait my hook with it.

"A little later I felt a tapping against my leather boot.

"I looked down. There was the snake I had given the drink to—holding two frogs in its mouth."

Billy Reese Defeats Gilbert Hall To Enter Semi-Finals

Today; Grant To Face Bell

Atlanta Star Springs
First Upset of Atlanta Invitation Tournament

Today's Matches

Despite rain, cold and whatever goes along with it, the Atlanta Invitational has progressed to the semi-finals and two corking good singles matches are scheduled today.

The schedule:

11:15—Allison vs. Reese.
2:15—Grant vs. Bell.

By Jack Troy.

Georgia Tech's captain, Billy Reese, bore out that prediction that he'd likely make the first upset in the Atlanta invitational by defeating Gilbert Hall, 10th ranking player nationally and seeded No. 4, in straight sets of a fine quarter-finals match yesterday afternoon at the Billmore club. The scores were three and three as the tennis players say, meaning 6-3, 6-3.

Reese had his service going well and capitalized on it. He came through time and again with sensational recovery shots. Billy hit his shots equally well off backhand and forehand and was, in short, a bit too smooth for the popular Hall, Orange (N. J.) ace.

EVEN SCORE.

It sort of evened up an old score for Billy, Hall having beaten him in the finals of the recent South Atlantic tournament at Augusta.

The three other singles matches yesterday were replete with fine tennis.

Wilmer Allison, No. 1 player and top seeded, won a splendidly contested match against Malon Court, Georgia state champion, and second No.
8, 6-2, 7-5. Allison's brilliant volleying, keen generalship and faultless placements were too much for Court, who, nevertheless, was very much in the match and made the fans a lot of exciting moments.

Bryan Grant, seeded third, and Lefty Bryan, of Chattanooga, seeded fifth, played one of the keenest matches of the afternoon, with Grant winning, 6-4, 6-6.

GREAT SERVICE.

Bryan's slashing southpaw service was good for several aces and he made a number of excellent recovery shots.

Bryan's volleying and his Dead-Eye placements, his work at the net and his superior generalship gave him the match lead after Bryan had run up a good lead in the second set.

Bryan's dead, M. J. Ryan, was out for the first time yesterday and watched Betsy play in the doubles.
It's Mr. Grant's opinion that Bryan's improved volleying is largely due to a change of racket. At any rate there wasn't anything wrong with his volleying yesterday. He volleyed from the baseline with keen direction.

And he came to the net and slugged it out with Lefty. It seemed to the spectators as if Betsy, Uncle Sam's newest Davis cup player, never opened up. And he really was out.
Grant has suffered with a bad cold since his return from Houston and really hasn't felt the part on such bitter days as the tournament has seen to date.

SURFACE GOOD.

Young Hal Surface, Missouri valley champion, from Kansas City, seeded seventh, gave a well-seeded Berkeley, Bell, a run for the final place. Bell finally won, 6-4, 6-4, but only after a real fight that interested the shivering gallery as much as any match played.

Surface, equipped with beautiful strokes, lacked only the power to finish off Bell. At that he made the former Texan talk to himself before the match was finished. Surface is one of the most promising players coming along. Another year of experience will make him a decided threat.

Bell's power, strategy, terrific service, potent backhand and all were to the good. He placed his shots close to Surface's backhand repeatedly and kept him off balance so he couldn't stroke with proficiency.

While the tennis to date has been excellent, it has been nothing compared to what will happen in the semifinals today.

GRANT IN ACTION.

Fans will see Bryan Grant in what may be his last match here as he leaves for Mexico City to join the Davis cup team in the first round against China.
Grant plays Berkeley Bell, whom he has beaten once already this year, at 2:15. Grant isn't altogether sure that Bell won't get revenge today.

Bell is a fighter and a thoroughly capable player, ranking seventh nationally. He has beaten Grant several times last year. To my way of thinking, however, he will never beat Grant today if Betsy is really shooting. And no one yet has ever accused him of pulling his punches. He really doesn't know the meaning of the phrase.

Allison and Billy Reese clash in the other semi-final match. Billy ought to make a quick match of it.
He believes he will give Allison a close run and might beat him. It will be interesting, this match.

ANOTHER UPSET.

There was a stirring upset in the doubles quarter-finals yesterday. Enloe and Bobbitt, non-seeded, defeating Courts and Simpson, seeded No. 4, 6-1, 6-1.

Other results included:
Allison and Grant, No. 1, defeated

'Captain' Lou Gehrig Spars With Dempsey

Named First Captain of Yanks Since Ruth Held Post Under Huggins.

By Alan Gould,

Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, April 12.—With genuine flourish and obvious enthusiasm, Lou Gehrig today took over the role of "spotlight man" for the Yankees, after playing the part of strong, silent understudy to Babe Ruth for 10 years.

To emphasize the developments, the "iron man" of baseball worked out briskly with the one-time "man mauler" of the ring, Jack Dempsey, at Artie McGovern's gymnasium, which was wired for sound especially for the occasion and gave off echoes of Ruthian ballyhoo. There were no knockdowns.

To make it official, the Yankees subsequently disclosed Manager Joe McCarthy has appointed Gehrig as team captain for the 1935 season. This was significant, because there has been no captain on the club since Babe Ruth held the job only to be deprived of it by the late Miller Huggins "for the good of the service."

MAKES STATEMENT.

To celebrate, Columbia Lou promptly exercised the prerogatives of his new office and responsibility. He smiled broadly as the boys gathered around, took a deep breath, squared his tremendous shoulders and boomed:
"The Yankees are a great team and I'm proud to be their captain."

"The Yankees are a great team and I'm proud to be their captain," he said, "and I'm going to lead them to the top of the league. We have more speed, more power and more heart than any other team in the league. It looks like a good race, but we have the best team in the league,
all things considered."

This was one of the longest non-stop statements Gehrig had ever issued,
in addition to being the most emphatic.
The boys heard that Gehrig and his exploits for the first time so long that it was all a bit sudden. It was necessary to readjust the focus. The man who has long since passed Ruth, in the field and his power at bat are concerned, was shedding his inferiority complex, so to speak, and doing a complete job of it.

LIKES HIS TEAM.

Gehrig warmed to his subject. He paid tribute to Ruth but suggested the Yankees would not be handicapped by having the speedy George Seligson in right field. He emphasized the comebacks of Tony Lazzeri and Bill Dickey as big factors in the Yankee outlook. He dwelt on the speed of the outfielders, like Crossett, Hill, Walker and Seligson.

Gehrig hopes to hit 50 or more home runs this year—for the first time since 1925, his "all-time" record on the home run. He said he depends on the home run for his major leagues with 49 last season.

Just to keep himself occupied, Captain Gehrig expects to play 164 games,
the record of the late Hank Aaron, championship game since 1925. His all-time "iron man" record now includes 1,504 consecutive contests.

WOOD DELAYS RECORD TRIAL

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., April 12.— (AP)—Unable to make a proper setup of his biplane, Gar Wood today indefinitely postponed further efforts to better his own world's motorboat speed record of 124 miles an hour.

His decision was based on mechanics sent the 38-foot boat across Indian creek on what Wood described as an unsatisfactory run.

He said his intention to the step which has consumed the last several days, did not permit the craft to properly ride the surface.

Accordingly, he ordered the boat put back into its stable and instructed mechanics to continue experimenting with set adjustments in an effort to increase the speed.

Wood said he would have to leave here to be in Detroit on April 18 and that he would make no more official attempts to break his record until after he returns, possibly the latter part of next week or the first of the following week.

He recently was clocked at 119 miles an hour on an officially measured mile course and since then has been making various adjustments to the boat in an effort to step up the speed.

CRACKERS BEAT BUFFALO, 6 TO 5

seventh and "Pinky" James, playing rightfield, singled, but no runs came.
GREAT CATCH.

Taylor furnished the fielding feature of the game when he leaped up and speared Sieber's line shot over first in the fifth.

There were several nice outfield catches. Easterling backed to the fence in the third to take in a high wind-driven drive by Frank Hayes, the young catcher who belongs to Connie Mack, and Oana hauled down a long fly in center. Pitcher Carroll and Second Baseman Olsen collab-ored on a nice play in the fifth to retire James, a fast man. Carroll getting the ball, Olsen catching it.

Buffalo, which won the International Shagunness play-off in 1933 and finished fifth last year, has a good ball club with a good mixture of young talent and the ex-major league variety on the squad.

Manager Moore said he would try to send Bill Schmidt, who looked great beating the Yankees in his last start, the full 9-inning round. If he needs any relief, Durham or Lindsey will finish. The game starts at 3 p. m.

Margie Schalk, of the Bisons, will pitch Big Bob Kline, 245-pound right-hander, who was with Chattanooga
a spell last year, and Bill Harris, ex-Pitcher, right-hander. Art Jacobs, ex-Catcher, likely will work in Sunday's game.

Yesterday's win was 9 out of 14
for Atlanta.

Williamson and Gault, 6-1, 7-5.
Bell and Hall, No. 2, turned back Hoskins and Roland, 6-2, 6-2.
Surface and Bryan, No. 3, eliminated Reese and Boulware, 6-4, 2-6, 6-2.
Bobby Jones was an interested spector yesterday. Shooting and tennis, besides golf, are his favorite sports.

AMATEUR LOOPS BEGIN CAMPAIGN THIS AFTERNOON

Atlanta, Kennesaw Leagues Play Today,
City Loop Sunday.

The Atlanta league and the Kennesaw league open up the season's baseball campaign this afternoon, and Sunday the City league will play three games composing the first series of their season. Next week the Scott league gets under way along with several others that are starting late.

George Manassa Leaves Oglethorpe

George Manassa, counted on as the regular fullback for next fall at Oglethorpe, yesterday returned to his home in Florida.
Whereupon Coach John Patrick, young alumni head coach, took himself a handful of headache powders and tried to look upon life with continued optimism.

Withdrawal of Manassa makes three first team players Patrick has lost since he began his regular training period, Bolton Clark, quarterback, and Ed Massey, center, were the others.

It's reported a star kicker may fall to return in the fall. A coach's life is no bed of roses.
It's a bed of thorns and a handful of headache powders, says the young Patrick, beginning his second year as head coach.

Jim Bagby Jr. Fans Twenty At Monroe

MONROE, Ga., April 12.—Jim Bagby Jr. pitched sensational ball here
this afternoon to beat Monroe Agies, 5 to 0, and gave Boys' High a clean slate in the prep baseball league. It was Bagby's third victory and it kept the Purples on top in the league standings.

After starting slow, when Monroe secured a majority of their five hits, Bagby settled down to some fine hurling in the latter innings. He struck out 20 batters and was never in trouble after the fourth inning.

Wood, Mahle and Harris divided hurling honors for Monroe and kept himself well scattered, but four Monroe errors aided the Boys' High scoring.

Gerson's ability to get on base and Mims' double were features for Boys'
High in addition to Bagby's hurling. Slayton, Huley and Jones secured Monroe's few hits.

Commercial Wins Over Marist, 14-9.

Commercial High won a free-hitting,
14-9 victory over Marist College
Friday afternoon on the Marist diamond to remain undefeated in the City Prep league and keep pace with the leaders.

The Typhids came from behind in the third inning to score four runs and was never headed, although Marist rallied in the seventh and ninth innings with a barrage of base hits.

Mayfield's home run with two on base started the rally in the third inning. Commercial's Sorrow's two doubles and three singles and the pitching of Ivy were other features for the Typhids.

The hitting of Hubbell, Vandiver and the pitching of the fielding Clark retired at shortstop were outstanding features for Marist. Hubbell hit safely three consecutive times and after playing right field for six innings, he pitched the remaining three.

Johnson Kayoes

Foe at East Point

At Wagner, of Macon, Ga., substituting for Bob Maillard, who failed to make an appearance, proved an easy victim for the formidable Earl Johnson, local light-heavyweight, in the feature bout Friday night at the East Point city auditorium. Johnson was awarded a four-round technical knockout in a scheduled ten-round bout.

In the eight-round semi-windup, Bobby Wilcox, of College Park, and Everett Young, of Macon, Ga., fought to a lively draw.

They Gasson held his own to eke out a close decision over Kid Melton, of Newman, in the six-round main preliminary. Hilton Pilcher and Louis Hyman battled four rounds to a draw in the opener.

Promoter Tom Fellers announced that another boxing card will be presented next Friday night.

Stanley Believes 'Gators Improved

Dutch Stanley, head coach of the Florida football team and also head coach of track and tennis, arrived Atlanta yesterday with his team to enter a game this afternoon.

"We had a very good spring practice," he said. "We cut short a couple of weeks instead of going along for the scheduled eight weeks. We had a number of injuries and there were the stomped after all weeks. I think we should be a bit better than last fall although there will be no telling until we get into the game."

Stanley is the young alumnus who headed the all-alumni coaching staff at Florida two years ago and his assistants have done good jobs with the material at hand.

Reaper Counts Jim Flynn Out As Heart Fails

By Paul Zimmerman.

LOS ANGELES, April 12.—(AP)—
The game of Fireman Jim Flynn that carried him through more than a hundred victory ring battles, including a knockout by Jack Dempsey, stopped beating today.

The 53-year-old fireman, fighter and fighter was stricken by heart failure after a fight with a champion, christened
Andrew Chioriglione at Hoboken, N. J., December 24, 1910, breathed his last at the city receiving hospital.

A heart attack struck him down last night, but true to the tradition
he helped mold in the ring from 1901 to 1923, he refused to quit. An hour before he died Fireman Jim smiled weakly and gasped:

"I'm not out. You won't have to throw in the towel."

But Flynn was mistaken, as he was all too often in the declining years of a career that took him into the fistic wars against Jack Johnson,
Tommy Burns, Billy Papke, Sam
Langford, Gunboat Smith, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, Luther McCarty and many others.

Flynn already was on the way down when he met Jack Dempsey at Salt Lake City in 1917. Two years later Jack was to become world's champion of the great.

Flynn always said he was lucky in stopping the Manassa Mauler in the first round.

"Well, it was this way," he used to say, "I hit him with one-two.
The third nailed his chin. But just put it down that I didn't exactly knock Dempsey out. He just forgot to duck."

Jim Flynn, a native of Ireland, living in Pueblo, Colo., when he first started fighting around 1900. The ring records disagree on the time, place and some of the results of his bouts, but Flynn couldn't exactly remember himself. He was flipped the foam off mugs of beer here and talked of his encounters.

EMORY NETMEN DEFEAT FLORIDA

Losing only one match in the singles, Emory's varsity tennis team defeated Florida, 6-3, Friday team decision at Dewey court. It was the second victory in three starts for the local team.

Nick Polito, coach and captain of the Florida team, routed Adams of Florida, 6-0, 6-4, in the No. 1 match, and Bob Wyatt, in the No. 2 position for Emory, dusted off Fenner, of Florida, without losing but two games.
The score was 6-2.

Chris Conyers lost the only singles match for Emory, dropping an overtime decision to Loucks, of Florida.
6-2, 6-2. Frank Morrison defeated Hedderly, of Florida, 4-6, 7-5, 6-3, in the best match on the program. Carlton Collar won easily from Sim, of Florida, 6-1, 6-3.

In the doubles, Polito and Pelaez,
Emory, defeated Adams and Sim, 6-3, 6-1, in the No. 1 match. Florida won the other two doubles matches, both by three sets. Fenner and Wyatt and Weatherly, Florida, won from Wyatt and Collar, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3; and Fenner and Loucks, Florida, won from Conyers and Morrison, Emory, 6-2, 6-2.

Florida will meet the Jackets this afternoon on the Tech courts.

On the Links

A regular weekly blind bogey tournament for the John A. White municipal golf course will be inaugurated this afternoon.

R. M. Hubert, club professional,
will be in charge of the tournament.
The annual meeting of the John A.
White municipal golf association will be held next Wednesday night at the club.

East Lake golfers will hold another of the regular weekly blind bogey this afternoon. The players may select their own handicaps and can play over either course.

Georgia's Fields and Streams

Have you any waterfowl in your community? Well, and why not?
Every citizen should be getting waterfowl sanctuaries, even if only a half dozen ducks get there the first year. More will come later.

More Game Birds in America, a new book, every citizen should have a national contest for small waterfowl refuges. There are 20 prizes in this contest, ranging from $250 and a silver cup down to 15 prizes each only $5. Every contestant who develops a complete refuge will receive a certificate of merit signed by the well-beloved chief or the Bureau of Biological Survey.

There have been cases, I know, of cities that developed unsightly abandoned rock quarries as rock gardens.
There are probably 100 towns in Georgia that could develop an adjacent marsh or pond for wild ducks.
It's a good way to get a good zoo for nothing, so to speak, for the variety of waterfowl that will stop if you cannot be told in the short space at my disposal.

Developing a waterfowl refuge is not difficult. The foundation has shipped me sets of rules, entry blankets, and bulletins telling how to develop such refuges. There are not enough to go around, let me warn you beforehand. I am gradually getting enough copies of the fish pond bulletins from here and there to make up my mailing list and meet the requests that swamped me last month.
If you want to be among the 50 to get the waterfowl refuge bulletins without waiting, be sure to write in at once.

Your garden club could use $250 and that silver trophy would look good in the clubhouse. Private individuals may start the ball rolling for the community or carry out the program themselves. The minimum water area has to be three acres, which is a small enough refuge in any case. Your refuge does not have to be entered until December 1, but if you expect to be among the 50 to get the waterfowl refuge bulletins, start now. Water plants need cultivation like those of your garden. The first 50 requests get the bulletins. Largers must wait, patiently, until new supplies come from New York.

If you have no waterfowl refuges in your community, it is time to develop some. Who will be the first entry?

GARDEN NAMES JIM BRADDOCK AS Foe OF BAER

Jersey City Veteran To Meet Max Some Time in June.

NEW YORK, April 12.—(AP)—Jimmy Johnson, Madison Square Garden's boxing promoter, announced tonight he had definitely selected Jimmy Braddock, Jersey City veteran, to meet Max Baer in a heavyweight championship bout here in June.

Baer already is under contract to the Garden for a title defense, and Braddock has agreed to terms, Johnson announced. He will seek formal approval for the match at the New York state athletic commission's meeting Tuesday.

This will be a formality, for the commission already has designated Braddock as the No. 1 heavyweight challenger.

Johnson said the bout probably would be held the middle of June in the Garden's Long Island bowl.

The Garden promoter said he had decided to go ahead with plans for a Baer-Bradcock bout upon receiving word that Max Schmeling, Germany's ex-champion, would not come to this country either to fight Braddock in an elimination match nor Baer for the title.

It was understood Braddock would receive 1-2 per cent of the receipts, the Garden boosting its original offer of 15 per cent in return for Baer's managers agreement to make his first title defense, should he beat Baer, under Garden promotion.

AUBURN LOSES TO BUFORD, 17-0

BUFORD, Ga., April 12.—The heavy-hitting Bob Allen Shoe Makers matched 17 hits with 17 runs here Friday and easily defeated the Atlanta Braves, 17-0, in the first of a two-game series. The game was called in the seventh because of near-freezing weather.

Every Buford player save Whitely, who was walked twice, secured two or more hits. Al Kimbrell led the Shoemakers with a trio of singles.

Tiger, pitcher, who limbered up the Tigers to three safeties, all singles, in as many innings, slammed out a double and a single.

Jeter was in rare form for this early in the season. A steady breeze whipped across the playing field, but while his mates and the fans were shivering, he was whipping his fast ones by the Tigers. He gave up hits to Joe Stewart, pinch runner; Mugs Erwin and Joe Eaves. Jeter was accorded perfect support and the Shoemakers completed three twin killings.

Furrow and Eaves pitched the first five innings for Auburn and were touched at will. The former went to the showers in the second. Lefty Wilcoxson, making his second appearance, pitched the last four, hurled the frame for Auburn and retired Buford in order.

STATE DRY LEADERS INCREASE ACTIVITY

W.C.T.U. National President To Speak Here Sunday. Wets Report Progress.

Activity on the part of prohibitionists fighting repeal of the state bone-dry law on which the people of the state will vote May 15 was quickened yesterday when it was announced that Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, of Washington, national president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, would speak here tomorrow night in behalf of the dry cause.

Mrs. Smith will arrive tonight from Augusta where she spoke last night.

Mrs. Smith's address here will be delivered at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night at the Park Street Methodist church.

In announcing the visit of Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, state president of the W. C. T. U., said that the address to be made by the national president would be most timely and added that she expected a capacity crowd to hear the talk.

It also was announced yesterday that Philip Weiner, retiring chairman of the state university system, had accepted the chairmanship of the prohibition activities in Fulton county.

Mr. Weiner was selected by a city-wide committee headed by G. Frank Garrison. Others on the committee include the Rev. L. A. Davis, Senator G. Everett Millican, Representative R. L. Ramsey, Rev. S. F. Lowe, Alderman I. G. Hailer, John Ashley Jones and Dr. W. A. Shelton.

Another development yesterday was the announcement by Mayor E. D. Barrett, of College Park, that he had called a mass meeting of residents of that city for 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon for the purpose of perfecting an organization to support the dry law in College Park.

Charles D. McKinney, head of the dry campaign in DeKalb county, will be the principal speaker. Milton L. Fleetwood, of Cartersville, director of the temperance league, and Judge John S. Candler also will attend and take part in the organization work.

GRAYSON, GRIFFIN REPORT MORE COUNTIES IN LINE.
SWANSDORO, Ga., April 12.—Continuing their tour through middle Georgia, Chairman Spence Grayson and Vice Chairman Marvin Griffin, of the Georgia Association for Local Option, organized Baldwin, Burke and Emanuel counties here today, reporting that they had formed strong associations in each of the counties to work for repeal of the bone-dry law May 15.

"We are more than satisfied with the progress of our campaign," Grayson said here. "We have found that while the church people are claiming that the counties are dry there is a strong local option sentiment everywhere. We believe that we will carry Burke and Emanuel counties and have high hopes of carrying Baldwin as well."

Grayson and Griffin will move on to Savannah tomorrow and continue their tour southward next week.

Man Loses Car, $70 To Ride-Rob Bandits

Kide-and-rob bandits abducted H. E. Sheppard, of 1123 Oglethorpe avenue, last night and after holding him captive for nearly two hours took his car and $70 in cash.

Sheppard, manager of a grocery store at 809 Pryor street, told police he was entering his car shortly after closing the store when two armed white men, both about 25, got in with him. One drove and the other held a pistol on the storekeeper.

Sheppard said he was thrown out on a side road near Lakewood park. The robbers drove off in his car and he walked to the nearest phone to notify police.

Hallman-Satterfield Rites Take Place at Baptist Church

Miss Mildred May Hallman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hallman, became the bride of Carl Satterfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Satterfield, at an impressive ceremony taking place on Friday evening, at 8:15 o'clock at the Sharon Baptist church on Hightower road. Rev. Happy White performed the marriage service in the presence of relatives and friends.

Palms, ferns and foliage plants combined with calla lilies adorned the church, and cathedral candelabra held white tapers. Prior to the ceremony a musical program was played by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Crusselle on the violin and piano. The numbers included "Salute D'Amour," Chopin's Nocturne and "Souvenir," and during the ceremony "Traumeri" was played.

The bridesmaids included Miss Louise Satterfield, sister of the bride; Miss Ella May Wallace, Evelyn Bates and Mrs. Clyde Owens, of Gainesville. Miss Evelyn Woodall was the maid of honor. The attendants were gowned alike in pastel organdy gowns fashioned with fitted bodices and full graceful skirts. They carried pastel-shaded garden flowers tied with tulle.

The groomsmen were Shaler Wallace, Norris Curlee, Robert Chafin and Clyde Owens, of Gainesville. Harold Corbett and Claude Mills Jr., acted as ushers. Gant Moore was the best man for Mr. Satterfield.

Betty Brain, wearing a dainty frock of pink crepe, was flower girl. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet formed of pastel-shaded garden flowers encircled by a lace frill. Billy Cox was ring bearer, and wore a white linen suit and carried the ring in a lily. John H. Hallman gave his daughter in marriage.

White satin fashioned the becoming wedding gown worn by the lovely blond bride. Made along princess lines the skirt achieved a graceful long train. The filmy tulle veil was caught to her wavy hair by orange blossoms and she carried calla lilies tied with white satin ribbons.

Mr. and Mrs. Hallman entertained at a reception at their home on Gordon road following the ceremony, honoring the members of the wedding party, close friends and guests from a distance. Mr. Harold Corbett, sister of the bridegroom, kept the bride's book. Mrs. Carl Mills and Mrs. J. M. Hallman presided at the punch bowl.

Mr. Satterfield and his bride will reside with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hallman, on Gordon road.

The Beautiful Derelict

BY CAROLYN WELLS

INSTALLMENT I.

On the big steamship plying between New York city and Nova Scotia, Fleming Stone came out of his stateroom and went down the brass-bound staircase.

He paid scant attention to the shifting fog outside; his mind was intent on his journey's end, and he wanted to reach the metropolis as soon as possible.

Just at the present he wanted his breakfast, and reaching the dining room, drifted in to his seat at the captain's table.

Captain Gregg welcomed him with a smile, a reception not unusual to Fleming Stone, who made many friends because he couldn't help it.

They discussed the international yacht races, then just beginning, and as the talk drifted to other things, the captain gave an anxious glance at the fog through a porthole, and hoped he would not be late in arriving.

A steward came to their table. He brought a message from the first officer, who was on the bridge, requesting the captain's presence.

Captain Gregg responded at once, and Stone followed him, with a natural curiosity.

Owing to the fog there were two lookouts, and the one in the crow's nest had telephoned the bridge of a yacht, perhaps thirty-six feet long, and drifting helplessly. The sail was flapping and, perhaps because of the fog, they could see no one aboard.

"Have to see about it," said Captain Gregg, laconically, but with a sigh for the consequent delay.

But though they whistled and megaphoned, there was no response from the pitching boat.

They were out on the high seas, perhaps midway between Nantucket and Montauk Point. Leaving Yarmouth the day before, Stone had hoped to make New York that afternoon and he didn't at all like this promise of delay.

But the captain knew his duty. He ordered the engines stopped and a boat lowered, with the necessary crew. The third mate was in command, and Stone agreed to be allowed to go too.

"Do," said Gregg, "and pick up any information you can."

As the lifeboat rode the choppy waves, the fog lifted a little, and there was clearly seen a really beautiful yacht, which Stone declared at once to be a Marconi rigged sloop, with an auxiliary motor. But she was not moving by sail or motor power; she was helplessly drifting at the mercy of the wind.

With a real thrill, Stone looked forward to the explanation of this mysterious condition, and stared through a powerful glass as he dimly discerned the figure of a man huddled on the deck. No other human being was visible on board, and the detective sought disaster.

As the men rowed the lifeboat nearer to the yacht, they shouted through the megaphone but received no response.

As soon as he could do so, Jamison, the third mate, boarded the pleasure craft, and Stone followed at his heels.

On the deck, lay a man who quite evidently had fallen in some sort of convulsion, or had suffered a stroke. Stone started at him, held at the convulsed position, and noted, too, that he was quite dead. Jamison lifted the stiffened arm and, feeling for the man's heart, found it had ceased to beat.

"Know him?" he said, looking up at Stone.

"No; never saw him before. Do you know the yacht?"

"No; but we can doubtless find her papers."

"How do you know?"

"He isn't tagged for it. He's a visitor. But where's his boat?"

"Here he is," said the boatswain, who had brought them over. "He's dead, too."

"What have we struck here?" cried Jamison. "A charnel house?"

"Don't touch him," Stone said to the sailor. "Let me see him. Come over here, Jamison."

The other dead man was down in the hold.

It was apparent that he was down there to start the motor.

"That's the owner of the boat," Stone surmised. "But what happened to him?"

The man, a young fellow, was lying in a heap before the engine. His head had been lashed in with terrible blow, and though his face was but slightly marred, the back of his head was a sight to turn from quickly.

Jamison looked at his companion.

"Any theories, Mr. Stone?"

"No, nor any occasion for them. This is a case for the police."

"Well, and aren't you the police?"

"Not exactly. You must make sure there is no other human being on board, dead or alive, and then report to your captain."

No other person was found, and Stone took command of the boat.

"I am connected with the police, more or less," he said; "and I advise you, Jamison, to go right back with the boat to the Nookumet. Make your report to Captain Gregg, and tell him I am staying here with one of the crew that brought us over, and if it suits his plans I'd be glad to have him come over here. If not, I will do what he says."

Jamison and the man went off and Fleming Stone found himself alone on the yacht, save for one sailor and two dead men.

They were out on the high seas, with no land in sight.

"Could land be seen if there were less fog?" Stone asked of his only living companion.

"Might make out Martha's Vineyard, or maybe Nantucket. I don't rightly know just what we air."

He related the case in tactfulness, and as starting out to sea, as motionless as the two lifeless passengers.

With his usual efficiency, Stone began taking notes and making notes of conditions.

He paid little attention to the yacht, though he fully appreciated its great beauty and value. But that would be taken care of, he wanted to learn all he could of the events that had taken place and discover some explanation of the tragedy.

He examined first the body of the man down in the hold. A handsome young chap, perhaps twenty-six or so, in his shirt-sleeves and wearing no hat.

He must have been sailing the boat, for the sail, though flapping, was still unfurled, and the engine not yet started. He lay on the floor in a huddle, obviously having dropped where he stood. Felled by a blow? Surely; what else? Bashed on the back of the head? Of course—the fine young face showed only minor bruises. He was, then, facing the engine, struck from behind and killed by the ferocious blow.

A handsome young fellow, dark hair and eyes, and a face roughened and tanned by a summer spent on his yacht. Somehow Stone felt sure it was his yacht, and went up the steps to the deck and into the roomy cabin, to hunt for papers. There was a small safe, but it was locked, so beyond the fact that the name of the yacht was the Mad Anthony, little knowledge could be gained tactfully.

The Mad Anthony, as a name for a spanking yacht, seemed quite appropriate to the young man who lay dead in his hold. The boyish face looked as if given to smiling, and Stone even imagined it told a daredevil nature.

But he knew better than to read temperament from a dead face, a ward to the explanation of this mysterious condition, and stared through a powerful glass as he dimly discerned the figure of a man huddled on the deck. No other human being was visible on board, and the detective sought disaster.

As the men rowed the lifeboat nearer to the yacht, they shouted through the megaphone but received no response.

A handsome young fellow, dark hair and eyes, and a face roughened and tanned by a summer spent on his yacht. Somehow Stone felt sure it was his yacht, and went up the steps to the deck and into the roomy cabin, to hunt for papers. There was a small safe, but it was locked, so beyond the fact that the name of the yacht was the Mad Anthony, little knowledge could be gained tactfully.

The Mad Anthony, as a name for a spanking yacht, seemed quite appropriate to the young man who lay dead in his hold. The boyish face looked as if given to smiling, and Stone even imagined it told a daredevil nature.

But he knew better than to read temperament from a dead face, a source too likely to give erroneous information.

He went back on deck to look at the other victim of tragedy of some sort. This man was older than the one in the hold, and it would seem, had fallen from some internal disorder. It appeared to Stone that he must have had died from his deck chair, in a spasm of agony. If he had been seized with a sudden severe cramp, his contorted body might have fallen like that.

And yet, quite possibly, the man might have been dead in his chair, and thrown off it forcibly by reason of the yacht's tossing an unsteered way through wind and waves.

Stone looked at his hands. Fine, well-kept white hands, not at all like the hands of a sailor or yachtsman. A man, apparently nearing 40, with a face suggestive of a wise, cynical nature. Medium height, slender, well-groomed, and garbed in the most modern and well-made clothing.

Stone felt in the man's pockets and brought out a wallet, which gave up the information that it belonged to one Elkins Van Zandt, of New York city. He did not open the letters it contained, feeling that he was not yet definitely certain there had been any crime committed, or that he was justifiable in opening them. He was justifiable in opening them, and in the best of taste.

What did it mean, these two dead men on this beautiful boat, these two inexplicable deaths, out here on the high seas?

Through his mind passed a hazy memory of the Marie Celeste. But that ill-fated craft was found uninhabited and unmeasured.

No, the conditions were not much alike. There, the departure of all humanity from the vessel seemed to imply willingness to go, or else coercion. Here, the perpetration of the crime, if crime there was, had disappeared, leaving their victims behind.

But were they victims? Had there been a crime? A seemingly unanswerable question, thus far, and therefore a problem after Fleming Stone's own heart.

Ratiocination was called for. First, could the idea of a third party be eliminated? Could these two men alone be responsible for this state of things?

Could one of them have killed the other and then himself committed suicide? Too easy! Of course he could. The man on the deck could have gone down into the hold, could have seen the other there, starting the motor, could have hit him with a heavy weapon and killed him. Could there have gone back up to the deck and have taken poison to put himself out of the way. Also, the killer need not have killed himself, but died of some illness or accident.

One of Fleming Stone's special deductions was theorizing without sufficient data. He therefore told himself that he was not theorizing at all, merely trying to reconstruct the affair.

But the task of reconstruction was exceedingly difficult.

The older man was not only slender and of light weight, but had no strength of muscle observable and his small features, a suggestive face showed no pugnaclous tendencies. But Stone further ruminated, strange and inexplicable actions take place in connection with a murder.

And beside, who was there to say there had been any murder?

Continued Monday.

MONKEYS DO NOT APE HUMAN ACTIONS

The verb "to ape" is sadly unscientific when applied to situations of one animal imitating another or imitating human beings. Monkeys and apes can be trained to perform human actions, just as other animals can be, but nothing is farther from the truth than to say that these animals voluntarily perform such acts any more than other animals do.

By FRANK MACMILLAN

NEW YORK, April 12.—(P)—

Shares again dominated a quiet stock market today and were able to get a little responsive firmness from some other sections of the list.

The price of imported bar steel for commercial use continued to steam ahead to new high for the past nine years with a lift of 2-3 cents an ounce in New York and a roughly similar advance in London, the current price is nearly three times the depression low of 24 1/4 cents an ounce in 1932.

Following, as in the previous session, the price of the metal, some of the silver shares were able to get ahead substantially fractions as much as 3 points each. The best gainers in Thursday's dealings were United States Smelting at 111, and Cerro de

Pasco, at 50 3/8, each up around 3 points.

A number of other silver and non-ferrous metal issues trailed along to round about 1 to 2 points, including

Howe Sound at 50 7/8, Silver King at 12, Phelps Dodge at 17, St. Joe Lead at 14 3/4, and Magna at 26 1/2.

Other Stocks Aided

In today's session, however, the firmness in the silver section aided by a further substantial rally in the Chicago wheat pit, communicated itself in some degree to other portions of the grain and livestock section, and the medium grade and lower priced

Wheat got above the dollar mark for the first time since January and ended with gains of 2-3 to 5-12 cents a bushel, and further news of weather damage to the crop and short supplies here and abroad were digested by grain men. Corn advanced to 3-4 cents a bushel, but cotton was reactionary after Thursday's run-up and ended with losses of 10 to 35 cents a bale, after being down to a dollar at one time.

Volume Mounts

Most important stock classifications gained moderately, and the Associated Press average for 60 stocks ended .5

of a point higher at 83.1. Turnover in the stock exchange was little better than in the previous session, amounting to $40,210 shares.

Shares of J. J. Newberry, chairman of the Tennessee Valley authority, were the most active, the company was calling for redemption $4-

000,000 of its 5 1/2 per cent notes not due until 1940, and General Baking issues improved fractionally as earnings for the 13 weeks to March 30, were revealed as 18 cents a common share, compared with 15 cents in the same period of 1934. Little better gains of a point or so were chalked up for such stock leaders as Consolidated Gas at 21 1/2, Union Pacific at 90 1/2, Southern Railway at 103 3/8,

and Santa Fe at 40 1/4, while fractional advances appeared at the close in Westinghouse at 37 3/4, and American Telephone at 106 3/8, and International Nickel at 26 1/4.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Low Card Significance.

Listening to bridge players discussing hands one might be led to believe that such cards lower than the ten are of little importance. In fact, however, a seven spot caused the loss of a game in today's hand.

Neither the vulnerable; East-West part-score 90.
